HOTELS.

LARAGH HOUSE, LTD.
ANNAMOE,
CO. WICKLOW.

THE COUNTRY SPORTS HOTEL IN THE GARDEN OF IRELAND.

THE ANTRIM ROAD—THE MOUNTAINS of Mourne—the cold Blue Pool, we've seen them all, and now at last we're going South; don't you envy us? We're going to Laragh; it's near enough to Dublin for the theatre and to the sandy shore for bathing, but, of course, there's a large private swimming pool in the place if we prefer it.

The mountains and views are superb, and everything is there—golf on two private courses, tennis courts (Grass and Hard), and we're going to roam over the bridle paths on horseback. Are we looking forward to it?

What? Of course there'll be running water in our rooms, stupid!

Every modern comfort is provided for us, five luxurious Lounges with open turf fires circulating Hot Water system, Electric Light, Ping-Pong, Ballroom, Billiards, Sun Bathing, and a good Cellar. Lock-up Garages.

THE WEEK ON THE STOCK EXCHANGE

IDLENESS OF MARKETS

SOME INTERESTING MOVEMENTS

SHARP FALL IN HOME RAILS

LONDON, Friday Night.—In the past week the markets of the Stock Exchange have been very idle, but some interesting price movements have relieved the tedium of the dealers.

British Government stocks have hardly moved, but in the foreign bond department Japanese stocks have fluctuated considerably as the prospect of war between Japan and the Soviet has increased or decreased.

DISTURBING DEVELOPMENT.

A disturbing development has been the further sharp fall that has occurred in Home Railway stocks (despite reports that the companies propose to institute an economy campaign) owing to the continued heavy decline in their revenue.

The aggregate reduction in the receipts for the past week of £290,000 brought the leading stocks down to new "lows" for the current movement and for many years past.

Falls of no less than 4 points are shown in the 4 per cent. Midland and 5 per cent. Great Western Guaranteed stocks.

Raleigh Cycle 39s—4s.
Attocks 42s 6d—9d.
Anglo-Iranian 5⅝—5-32.
Pinchin Johnson 29s 10½d—2s 7½d.

Transatlantic stocks have wobbled [illegible] uncertainly to the piping of Wall Street, but show little change on the week.

In the Home Industrial market the best feature has been the further improvement in Rayon companies shares on the better reports to hand with reference to the condition of this industry both in the U.S.A. and here.

The Triplex dividend of 25 per cent was up to market expectations, although it compares with 35 per cent. last year plus a capital bonus of 100 per cent. The forthcoming annual meeting is awaited with much interest having regard to the reports that have been circulated with reference to the company's "contract" position.

Brewery shares, though manifesting some resistance to the recent declining tendency, due to the falling off in consumption of beer, are nevertheless lower on the week.

The heavy decline in Pinchin Johnson is relative to apprehensions regarding the interim dividend.

MINING.

There was little interest in the South African Budget as regards the Mining Market, as no alterations are to be made in the existing scheme of taxation. The weakness of sterling in relation to the dollar was reflected in the rise of the price of gold to 142s 7½d per fine ounce, but gold shares, although firm, were not particularly active. Towards the end of the week the quotation reacted to 142s 4½d, compared with 142s a week ago following the partial recovery in the sterling dollar rate due to profit-taking.

There was a large turnover in gold dealings on the 9th inst., when about £2,356,000 changed hands at the official fixing or 142s 7½d, due to rumours of pending currency developments, but the promise given by M. Daladier in Paris that the franc would not be permitted to fall below the "low" limit established at the time of the recent devaluation and his assurance that the French financial situation was satisfactory, together with the improved outlook in the Far East led to a less feverish scramble for the precious metal, but touched 142s 8d on the 12th following the recovery in the dollar.

Paris was a buyer of several of the established dividend payers such as Crown Mines, Gedulds and Central Mining, while Western Holdings encountered a good influential demand. Later in the week the Cape supported Vogelstruisbult, which changed hands freely. West Africans appreciated several pence.

DIAMOND SHARES.

There was a small demand for diamond shares, but Rhodesian Coppers were generally steady, while the market was favourably impressed by the Roan Antelope and Mufulira preliminary figures.

The price of copper showed a loss of 17s 6d at £40 10s per ton, while tin was unchanged on balance at £193 17s 6d per ton. Tin shares were firmer although price changes were small.

Rubber shares appreciated a few pence, stimulated by the improvement in the commodity at 7 29-32d per lb. after touching 7 31-32d at one time, while the news of the acceptance of Governments of the recommendation made by the International Rubber Regulation Committee as to the continuation of rubber regulation for a further period of five years after December 31 next had little effect.

Quiet conditions prevailed in the Oil share market, but prices dwindled through lack of fresh public support.

MARKETS SENSITIVE TO AMERICA.

All markets are sensitive to changes in Wall Street, which tends to show that the world is looking to America for a lead. Shares showing signs of recovery, but progress is naturally slow. Owing to the setback yesterday all markets were adversely affected to-day, especially commodities and metals. There is no sound reason why a fall in securities should cause rubber to weaken, but it does. Markets the world over seem to be more interdependent than before the Great War, and this may be largely due to the huge production of every commodity, the chance of a shortage in anything being very remote. The decline in Wall Street follows a fair rise and an occasional shake out is all to the good.

TECALEMIT HOPES.

Tecalemit, Ltd., was established in [illegible], so that the company has not been long established, but the business acquired is a few years older. The company owns what is known as the [illegible] service and over 4,000 garages [illegible]. It is undoubtedly of great value, [illegible] aircraft manufacturers in this country are customers, while the company is on the Admiralty, War Office and Air Ministry lists. For the period from [illegible] ration to July 31, 1935, 12 per cent. [illegible] bonus of 2 per cent. were paid, [illegible] the following year 12 per cent. [illegible] forthcoming, and last year 16 per cent. was declared. The profit for the year ended July 31, 1937, was £100,112, and after making substantial deductions for depreciation, taxation, etc., £45,020 [illegible] for distribution. The dividend absorbed £35,250, and £14,383 was carried forward. The report for last year [illegible] in October, and it is understood the company will give a good account of itself. The 5s shares are quoted at [illegible] 13s 6d.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE MARKET SCARED.

[illegible] moot point whether nervousness over the international political situation or the currency alignment rumours or [illegible] are responsible, but the fact remains that the foreign exchange market has been scared out of its wits throughout the whole of the past week.

As a result, in addition to the great scramble [illegible] for dollars and a corresponding depreciation in sterling, francs, etc.

On balance for the week the dollar has strengthened to the extent of 3 per mille against sterling. Despite active intervention by the exchange control the franc has lost ½ per cent. in value in terms of sterling. As regards the Belgian belga the spot rate has moved more or less in sympathy with the dollar, but forward rates have widened very considerably.

WAREHOUSEMEN'S ANNOUNCEMENT.

Hayes, Candy & Co. have been out of the Ordinary dividend list for some years, the last payment thereon having been 2½ per cent. in respect of 1935. The "A" and "B" Preference dividends have hitherto been regularly paid but the directors now intimate that in view of the uncertain state of trade in the country they do not feel justified in authorising the payment of the interim Preference dividends customarily sent out on August 15.

O'-CEDAR'S RESULTS.

The directors of O'-Cedar, Limited, in their report for the year ended March 31, 1938, complain that throughout the period the company's business with China, Japan and Spain has been almost at a standstill, and that duties in Eire adversely affected results from that country, whilst during the second six months the company had to contend with the general recession in trade. The net profit is consequently down at £4,755 compared with 5,417 for 1936-37, though after again allocating £3,000 to reserve for contingencies and development the available balance of £5,971 against £5,623. The dividend is 10 per cent. on "A" and "B" Ordinary shares against 12½ per cent., while £4,696 is carried forward compared with £4,216 brought in.

ENCOURAGING COPPER STATISTICS.

The July Copper statistics as just advised from New York are of an encouraging character, world stock of refined copper during the month having decreased 28,199 tons to 523,196 tons. Domestic stocks were about 19,000 tons down at 339,970 tons. The apparent world consumption was 168,000 tons, out of which American consumption accounted for 41,000 tons. The world output by mines and smelters totalled 128,000 tons, American output accounting for 31,000 tons. The world production of refined copper amounted to 139,000 tons, of which American production was 36,000 tons.

THE MARKETING OF EGGS.

WHOLESALE DEALERS' PRICES.

The Ministry of Agriculture has determined that the following shall be the prices payable by licensed wholesale dealers for eggs delivered during the week ending on Saturday, August 13, 1938:—

HEN EGGS.

Deductions—Seconds, soiled eggs, ½d per egg. Rejects 1½d per egg.

DUCK EGGS.

Deductions—Rejects 1d per egg.

It is announced in the "London Gazette" that the Rev. E. A. Fitch, O.B.E., K.H.C., Chaplain to the Forces First Class, relinquishes the appointment of Hon. Chaplain to the King (12th August, 1938).

GOLD PRICE AGAIN MOVES UP.

HUGE TURNOVER AGAIN.

DEALINGS UNUSUALLY BIG.

The unusually large amount for a Saturday of £1,385,000 worth of gold was dealt in to-day, the price being 142s 9d per fine oz., an increase of 1d. Premium over dollar parity was again halfpenny.

There was little change in foreign exchanges, the dollar being 4.87¼ against 4.87 5-16 last night, the franc 178⅞ against 178 57-64, and belgas hardening to 28.95 against 28.97½.

GAVE POLICEMAN £5.

"NOT INTENDED AS BRIBE."

A motorist who said he did not remember giving a police officer a £5 note after his arrest, was fined £20 at Lymington on Thursday for being under the influence of drink while in charge of a motor-car at Brockenhurst on August Bank Holiday. He was Robert Hervey Cabell, of Charles Street, W.

Superintendent Jacobs said that after a slight collision with another car Cabell "carried out several round-abouts with his car" and finally ran into a ditch. On the way to the police station he handed a police officer a £5 note with the remark, "That will be all right."

Mr. Walter Frampton, defending, said Cabell had attended a 21st birthday party and had champagne and liqueurs. He had no recollection of giving the police officer £5. It was never intended as a bribe.

After the £20 fine had been announced, Mr. Frampton said Cabell would like the £5 note to be put into the court poor-box.

BELFAST EXCHANGE.

BUSINESS ON MODERATE SCALE.

LOOKING BACK ON WEEK.

NO OUTSTANDING FEATURES.

During the past week markets were helped to some extent by the Russo-Japanese truce, and toward the close prices generally tended to recover. Business on the local market was on a moderate scale without any outstanding features in the dealings.

British Government securities opened quietly, but strengthened before the finish. War Loan commenced at 102⅝-¾, firming to 102⅞, 103, and was dealt in at 102 13-16, 15-16, ⅞, 103, and 103 1-16. 4 per cent. Consols changed hands at 110⅝ and 110¾. 3½ per cent. Conversion Loan was fairly active, dealings being marked at 103 5-16, 103⅜, and 103 13-16, also 103⅞. Local Loans fetched 88⅞.

Quiet conditions prevailed in the Bank share market. Barclay Bank B were done at 76s, Lloyds "A" at 60s 3d, and Midland Parts at 9 31-32. Provincial Bank of Ireland repeated previous price, 53s. Westminster Bank Parts were firm at 97s 6d. Northern "A" were freely offered at 96s, and closed with buyers bidding 94s. B shares can be had at 47s 9d.

Local Boards were neglected. Belfast Water 5 per cent. 1941-61 stock hardened to 109¼. The 3½ per cent. issues were in demand without finding sellers. Belfast Corporation 3½ per cent. 1942 stock continued in request at 100. 1973 stock is asked for at 100½ and 4½ per cent. 1951 stock at 106½. 3½ per cent. Mortgages are bid for at 99¼ with no sellers in the market. The 6½ per cent. Mortgages 1941 fetched 105½.

RELIEF OF DERRY.

CLOGHER DEMONSTRATION.

GAILY DECORATED STREETS.

A demonstration commemorating the Relief of Derry was held under the auspices of the Aughnacloy District, Black Chapter, at Clogher on the lands of Br. W. Noble, and was participated in by contingents from all parts of the Clogher Valley.

Sir Kt. and Br. J. C. Crossle, County Grand Master, headed the procession of preceptories. Orange lodges and bands through the daily decorated streets to the rendezvous. Sir Kt. Crossle presided at the public meeting and welcomed the visitors from the outlying districts. Ulster had, he said, been made a target for attacks from many quarters, and he mentioned particularly articles in cross-Channel papers accusing the Loyalists of the province of being bigots and for ever persecuting their Roman Catholic neighbours—accusations which were absolutely false.

Sir Kt. Major Montgomery, D.L., proposing a resolution of loyalty, said the English Government would sell Ulster for the sake of peace, and the Ulster people must make an effort by propaganda to make their position clear to the English people. For this reason he was glad a Northern Ireland Agency was being opened in London. The gentleman appointed to that position, he thought, was the right man in the right place. They had a splendid "B" Force in the province, and nothing would bring the English people back to their senses better than a force like the U.V.F. or the "B" force.

Sir Kt. Rev. R. W. S. Maltby, M.A., rector of Ballygawley, seconding said they in Ulster must never allow a flag which represented disloyalty to replace the Union Jack, and they were prepared if need be in order to prevent such a catastrophe to take the stand their forefathers took in 1688 and 1690.

Sir Kt. N. Duff, J.P., Ballygawley, proposed a resolution expressing Ulster's determination to remain in the Empire, and said they in Ulster could never allow themselves to be joined to any people who did not give the Union Jack its rightful place at the head of the State.

Sir Kt. Rev. W. I. Stewart, M.A., rector of Augher, seconding, said the ideals of the two Governments in Ireland were as different as day was from night. In the North their Government wanted the province to remain in the Empire, while in the South they were out for a republic and wanted to have nothing to do with the King or Empire.

The resolutions were passed, and votes of thanks terminated the proceedings

HOMICIDE CHARGE

AGAINST ENGLISH PAINTER.

BANK HOLIDAY TRAGEDY.

David Lincoln, aged 19, a painter, appeared on remand at Lincoln Police Court yesterday charged with the murder of Albert Tuxworth (34), who died in Lincoln County Hospital on August 3 as the result, it is alleged, of a blow by Lincoln on the night of August Bank Holiday.

Lincoln was arrested on August 4 at Scampton R.A.F. Station, where he was employed.

Statements he was alleged to have made then were read in court by Mr. E. G. Robey, instructed by the Director of Public Prosecutions.

Mr. W. L. Kitchen, of Lincoln, defended.

Mr. Robey said that Tuxworth and a friend named Rathcliffe, who had had some drink, were outside an hotel in Pelham Street at about 11 p.m. Lincoln passed by with a Miss Mettam and a friend named Ernest Ellis. Something said or some gesture by Tuxworth annoyed Lincoln, who had also had something to drink. Lincoln, he added, undoubtedly struck Tuxworth a blow or blows and Tuxworth fell heavily on the pavement, receiving fatal injuries.

Medical evidence was that the injury to Tuxworth's head was probably caused by contact with the pavement.

Mr. Robey said that Lincoln made a statement that a man behind him shouted "Do you mean me" He turned and said "No, Pal. What do you mean?"—not knowing what the man was talking about. The man raised his hand as if to strike him. It was dark, and he was sure the man was going to hit him and he struck him in the face with his fist. It was not much more than a push. Later Lincoln stated that he did not hit Tuxworth to hurt him and that it was more in self defence.

Ernest Ellis (21), who was with Lincoln, said that Tuxworth and Lincoln were arguing and Tuxworth swung his arm at Lincoln. Lincoln struck Tuxworth on the chest and also on the chin. Tuxworth fell into the gutter when he received the second blow.

Lincoln was committed for trial at Lincolnshire Assizes on a charge of manslaughter. Bail was allowed in £25, and with his mother as surety in another £25.

The 'plane was piloted by Wing-Commander Fielden.

SIR WILSON HUNGERFORD.

BACK FROM AMERICAN TRIP.

Sir Wilson Hungerford, M.P., arrived home in Belfast this morning after a most interesting visit to Canada and the States.

He crossed on the Donaldson Atlantic liner Letitia, and experiencing good weather all the way looked fresh and well.

His visit was undertaken along with a party of members of Scottish Unionist Associations who, headed by Col. M'Innes Shaw, D.L., left their own land for Canada on July 8.

The Donaldson-Atlantic liner Athenia, by which they travelled to Montreal, called in Belfast Lough on July 9 and there Sir Wilson joined them.

From Montreal the party proceeded to Ottawa, which was reached on July 18, and then to Toronto, where Lieut.-Col. M'Innes Shaw, as president of the Imperial Grand Orange Council, and other members of the same Order, accompanying him, were given a great reception by the Orange leaders in the Land of the Maple Leaf.

Niagara Falls were next visited, and New York, from which the party went back to Montreal, to embark for home.

Sir Wilson Hungerford, however, did not return with them, but remained some time longer in America to visit personal friends.

SPARROW'S NEST IN BOOKIE'S CAR

A bookmaker on opening the luggage compartment of his car at Romford (Essex) Stadium early on Friday was surprised to find a sparrow fly out. On investigation he found a nest made of brown paper and bookmarkers' price sheets in the compartment containing four newly-hatched sparrows.

The bookmaker does not remember when he last opened the luggage compartment.

The nest was taken out at the stadium and laid on some straw, the mother bird watching the proceedings from a nearby tree.

ULSTER BUILDING SOCIETIES.

REPORT OF THE MINISTRY.

INVESTMENTS AND ADVANCES.

The report on Building Societies issued by the Ulster Ministry of Commerce this week shows that, whilst the high peak of Building Society activity reached in the year 1936 was not repeated in 1937, the advances to borrowers made by the English and Scottish Societies operating in Northern Ireland during the year reached the very respectable aggregate of £666,981. The total amount invested by Northern Ireland residents in such societies is recorded as £989,391 and the amount due by Northern Ireland borrowers to the societies was £2,726,770.

Turning to the Northern Ireland societies only six of these transacted new mortgage business during the year, but at £89,633 the figure recorded for advances is the highest for the past ten years. There are now only 11 societies on the register and four of these are in liquidation.

In the Northern Ireland Societies there are 2,021 shareholders, 516 depositors, and 1,030 borrowers, whilst the particulars furnished by the cross-Channel Societies show 3,979 investors' accounts and 5,010 borrowers' accounts held in Northern Ireland.

The report is published by H.M. Stationery Office, 80 Chichester Street, Belfast. The price is 6d net.

TRAGIC ECHOES OF GREAT WAR.

MEN HIT BY SHRAPNEL.

EVIDENCE AT THE INQUESTS.

Two tragic stories of men, one in the Army and the other in the Navy, who were wounded by shrapnel during the Great War and have now died, were told at Battersea inquest yesterday.

John William Hodson (51), of Blackpool Street, Leeds, served with the West Yorks in France, and in 1915 a piece of shrapnel entered his lungs. He was discharged from the Army in 1917 and ever since suffered from chest trouble.

Dr. Temple Grey, the pathologist, said that there was a piece of metal weighing about an ounce in the lung.

Hodson died during an operation to remove the metal.

Sidney George Bissett (55), of the Stag Hotel, Liskeard, Cornwall, a chief petty officer in the Navy, was knocked down by a piece of shrapnel on a destroyer. As a result of his fall pressure was caused on the spinal cord and for three years he was in Devonport Naval Hospital. He died in Queen Mary's Hospital after an operation to remove the pressure.

A verdict in accordance with the medical evidence was returned in each case.

BROTHERS INJURED

IN DUNDALK ACCIDENT.

NEWRY MOTORIST CHARGED.

Two brothers named Anthony Lee, aged 17, and John Lee, aged 11, of Railway Terrace, Dundalk, were injured in an accident which occurred in Long Avenue, near the juncture of that street with Hill Street, Dundalk, on Friday evening, when, while cycling, they were in a collision with a motor-car.

Both boys were taken to hospital and were conscious on admission. Anthony was severly injured about the head and legs, while his brother was injured about the legs. Car and bicycle were badly damaged.

Later, at a special court in Anne Street Barracks, Dundalk, Miss Kathleen Frances Cahill, Hill Street, Newry, was charged with having at Long Avenue, Dundalk, driven a motor-car at a speed, or, in a manner which, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, was dangerous to the public.

Sergeant W. Fagan gave formal evidence of arrest and added that the accused made a statement which he would put in evidence at a later hearing of the charge.

Miss Cahill was remanded on bail of £100 and one surety in £100 to the Dundalk District Court on August 31.

The court was held before Mr. John Maguire, Peace Commissioner.

"MORE LIGHT" PETITION.

SEQUEL: EIGHT PEOPLE DEAD.

MEXICO CITY, Friday.—Several hundred residents of Michoacan State entered the local Town Hall to-day to petition for better electric light facilities.

A remark made by one of the councillors so incensed them that they besieged the building for an hour. Troops were called out, and in the ensuing struggle five men and three women were killed and twelve were wounded before order was restored.—Exchange.

POLICE OFFICER CHARGED WITH ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

Harold Percy Hughes, of Stafford, Police Superintendent in charge of the Stafford division, was brought up at a special court at Stafford on Friday, charged on warrant with attempting suicide by inhaling coal gas.

Police-Inspector H. Dix stated that when the warrant was read to Hughes, he said. "I have nothing to say."

Inspector Dix said that he had been instructed by the Chief Constable of Staffordshire to ask for a remand in custody, not only for the security of Hughes, but because a graver charge would be preferred against him.

The Magistrates' Clerk (Mr. W. W. M. Morgan)—You have no objection?

Hughes—I have no objection at all.

The remand was granted.

THE GARDENER'S CORNER

Oddly-Named Ice-Plants—They Need The Sun

By "THE MAN WITH THE HOE"

ROSES, sweetpeas and carnations are now at their best. The fine, hot sunshine bringing out their flowers to perfection. Antirhinnums, too, especially autumn-raised plants, are flaunting their colours, although these plants have not been particularly noticeable in the earlier part of the year.

It is strange, from their name, to see ice plants flourish in the heat of summer. These succulents are blooming freely now. There are many varieties of Mesembranthemum, shrubby and succulent, annual and perennial. Many are worth growing. They would make a special hobby for the enthusiast by themselves.

Lady's Eardrops."

Fuchsias are now showing their pretty scarlet and purple bells, which bees in great numbers frequent in dry weather all the day. They are called "Lady's Ear-Drops" in some places, as they would make good designs for ear-rings. These plants flourish in seaside districts, and here they may be often seen at present covered with flowers, some of which have fallen and reddened the ground with their scarlet confetti.

In a garden which was visited seven different varieties were counted. Some of these had variegated leaves, which made them look distinctive. The colours of the hardy species are scarlet and purple, purplish red, and scarlet alone. Their propagation from seed is interesting.

This is generally done in a temperature of 55 degrees in March or April, or by cuttings placed out of doors for the common variety, which is often seen growing in the hedges over the countryside.

Flourish At Seaside.

Another plant which flourishes in seaside gardens is the shrubby veronica. It is now to be seen flowering profusely. These plants seem to revel in sandy conditions. There is a very hardy variety which has blueish flowers, it is much used for hedges by the sea.

It is easily raised from cuttings, and often sowing itself upon walks, gives fine young plants for filling up bare spots. Many blanks in hedges and ugly bare spots may be filled up with this fine evergreen. There are many choice varieties of these veronicas. Some have variegated white leaves and handsome purplish blue and white flowers, which make them attractive when grown up an avenue.

There are some of these shrubs which have white, pink, purple, or blue flowers. The majority of veronicas were originally introduced from New Zealand. The compost which grows them to perfection is loam, peat, and sand.

Later on in the summer the Red Admiral butterfly may often be seen sitting on their flowers. This makes a pretty sight on a bright summer day.

Month For Rambler Roses.

This is the month for rambler roses, and one seen growing over the corrugated iron roof of an outhouse was an arresting picture. Now that colour photography has come into practice, some choice mementos of bright summer hours will be able to be recalled during the dark winter days. Rambler roses are easily raised from cuttings put in the open ground during autumn; but these should be left for a couple of years in the nursery bed until they are well rooted before transplanting. The Polyantha roses seem to have taken on a spell of popularity, so that the ramblers are not thought so much of as formerly, although they still are great masses of bright colours.

In the Kitchen Garden.

In the kitchen garden vegetable marrows are now showing young specimens which are useful as vegetables, so some of them should be cut for this purpose. Long Green seem to be a favourite for the later purpose of preserving. Where the shoots of marrows are too thick they should be thinned out; and some advocate stopping those showing small marrows at two joints beyond them. By pegging down some shoots at a joint new roots will evolve, and the plants will get more strength to carry a good crop.

Cucumbers in frames are growing freely now. Heat and moisture are the two things which they require most. There is a plentiful supply of good peas and broad beans now. They should be used up when young before they start to harden in the pods.

Beet, parsnips, turnips, and Lisbon onions look flourishing and promise well for a good winter supply.

As the early potatoes are dug some portion of the ground should be used for planting leeks, where they will grow well without further manure. Onions also may now be sown in the same place. Celery should be kept clear of weeds, dusted with old soot, and the blanching in many places carefully attended to.

THE ULSTER AGENCY IN LONDON.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

RESOLUTION OF REGRET.

WHAT SHOULD HAVE BEEN DONE.

the Belfast Chamber of Commerce held in the Boardroom, the report of the deputation to the Prime Minister was received, and, after discussion, the following resolution was adopted:—

"That this Council of the Belfast Chamber of Commerce regrets that the whole scheme for the establishment and staffing of a Northern Ireland office in London was made public before it had been submitted to Parliament for its approval, as such a procedure would have enabled commercial and trade organisations interested to make any necessary representations on the matter.

The foregoing is the official report of this afternoon's meeting.

It will be recalled that a preliminary meeting was held on Friday, 5th inst., at which the manner of the appointment came in for some rather severe criticism.

Eventually it was resolved that a deputation should wait on the Prime Minister on the subject to ascertain details of the functions and duties of the new office.

The deputation accordingly waited on the Prime Minister at Stormont early in the present week.

No report of their interview was officially given at that time, the report of the delegates being reserved for today's meeting, which, like the former gathering, was held in private.

There was again a representative attendance yesterday.

ULSTER ORCHARDS' CONDITION.

HIT BY APRIL-MAY WINDS.

APPLE SCAB DISEASE OBSERVED.

The judges, Mr. W. R. Spencer, Mr. David W. Baillie and Mr. George Doolan in their report of the Ulster apple orchard competition, the results of which have already been published, state:

Long periods of fine dry weather in March and early April, which resulted in growth being much in advance of the normal, were followed in late April and May by cold dry east winds and night frosts which did great damage to the flowers of apple trees.

Practically half of the orchards visited had less than half a crop of fruit. Ten had crops estimated at between half and threequarters of a crop, while only four had more than threequarters of a full crop. Not only were the crop yields considerably below the average of those seen in previous competitions, but the size and quality of the fruit were also inferior.

It was evident that Aphis (green-fly) had been prevalent in many orchards by the amount of badly curled leaves seen in them. There was, however, little evidence of attacks by capsid bugs either on the foliage or on the fruit.

Woolly Aphis was bad in several orchards, even the young shoots being badly infested on many trees. We believe this pest is on the increase and we would like to urge growers to take steps to control and, if possible, to eradicate it.

Apple scab disease was observed in a few orchards, but in each case the crop was seriously affected, its market value being already greatly reduced.

The dull wet weather of June and July was very favourable to the spread of apple scab, and it is only by thoroughly spraying the trees with Bordeaux mixture that the disease can be kept in check.

The trees in a number of orchards require severe thinning as far too many superfluous branches have been allowed to remain in them, so that it is not possible to walk freely between the trees.

The condition of the ground and the care of the orchards generally were very satisfactory. The grass had been cut and placed as a mulch round the trees, the fences were in a good state of repair, and the trees had been well sprayed, all of which show that the owners are keenly interested.

We sympathise with the fruit growers on their small crops this year, due to weather conditions beyond their control and we hope that it may be many years before they have a similar experience.

MISS FISHWICK'S BELGIAN TITLE.

LE ZOUTE, Friday.—Miss Diana Fishwick (Wentworth), former British champion, won the Belgian women's open golf championship here to-day, beating Miss Kathleen Garnham (Naze) 5 and 4 in the 36 holes final.—Reuter.

IRISH GREAT SOUTHERN PROJECTED CONFERENCE.

The suggested dismissal of 8,000 employes of the Great Southern Railway Company will be the subject of a conference between representatives of the Irish Road and Rail Workers' Federation and officials of the Eire Department of Industry and Commerce early next week.

SIR J. DAVISON AND INTERRUPTOR.

ENNISKILLEN INCIDENT.

ALLUSION TO BELFAST WAY.

There was an incident during the progress of the speeches at the Enniskillen Black demonstration on Friday.

Sir Joseph Davison was addressing the big assembly when an aged man without a sash, standing on the outside of the crowd, referred in a slighting manner to the speaker's statement about loyalty.

Sir Joseph took him up at once, declaring in emphatic tones: "I have given my life to loyalty and as long as God spares me I shall continue to give it. (Cheers). I have been in the Orange Order for 45 years."

A voice—That man (the interruptor) has no sash.

Sir Joseph—Then do not let him interrupt any speaker here. (Hear, hear). We have a way of dealing with those people in Belfast. We do not allow any interruptors there. (Cheers).

Later in his speech Sir Joseph defended the Special Powers Act and said he hoped the Northern Government would not listen to any request for its amendment as he considered it necessary to deal with the villainous Republicanism which was being carried on in the North.

Sir Kt. and Br. Thos. C. Nelson, Grand Pursuivant of Ireland, declared that though Dr. Douglas Hyde was held out to them as a Protestant they could have no place for a Protestant who did not express his loyalty to King George VI. Dr. Hyde had been appointed to the Presidency of Eire for one reason, because he was the founder of the Gaelic League, and so prevented a war between Mr. De Valera and Mr. Cosgrave. He hoped the new Ulster House in London would state Ulster's case as it really is and displace the idea being put abroad that Ulstermen were a lot of bears or Red Indians ready to scalp everybody. (Laughter and applause).

Sister Mrs. R. O. Hermon, J.P., spoke on the malicious propaganda against loyal Ulster which, she said, kept them in a state of worry.

FOUR BANDITS KILLED.

LATEST NEWS FROM PALESTINE.

A telegram from the High Commissioner for Palestine dated to-day states that on Thursday afternoon four bandits were killed in minor encounters with the military in the Nablus area.

On Thursday two Jews were shot and seriously wounded, one in Jaffa and the other in Haifa, where a Jewish truck was set on fire and its driver injured.

Early this morning a Jew was shot dead near Jaffa Gate, Jerusalem.

THE DUTCH AUTHORITIES

SEIZE TWO OIL LIGHTERS.

THE HAGUE, Friday.—Two lighters, Centrust I. and Centrust III., it is learned, each carrying 500 tons of oil, discharged from the motor vessel Lundgren at Antwerp, were to-day attached by the Dutch authorities at Dordrecht.

The Dutch authorities last month seized 10,000 tons of oil from the Lundgren, which is a Swedish tanker. The seizure was later declared illegal by the Middelburg Court, and the Lundgren was subsequently released. — Central News.

BREWERY MEETING REFERENCE.

Capt. C. E. H. Master, chairman of Friary, Holroyd & Healy's Breweries, Ltd., at the annual meeting at Guildford, Surrey, to-day, said:—"We consider that the prevalence of betting on football pools has led to a serious curtailment in the cash circulation among the licensed houses, and the recent slump on the Stock Exchange has led to many economies which cannot have failed to leave their mark on our trade."

CITY COUNCILLOR CHALLENGED.

RURAL COUNCIL WORK.

CASTLEREAGH PROTEST.

BYLAWS AND DEVELOPMENT.

At the monthly meeting of Castlereagh Rural District Council, Mr. Thomas Gray protested against a statement attributed to Councillor S. B. Thompson at the special meeting of the Belfast Corporation, held on August 10, relative to the proposal to promote a Parliamentary Bill for the purpose of extending the boundary of the city.

He was astounded, he said, to find this statement in the Press attributed to Mr. Thompson:

"There would be a good deal of employment of labour if the scheme (city extension) succeeded, because outside the city area there was no regulation or control of the class of houses built, the width of roads or their construction."

He considered it his duty as chairman of Castlereagh Rural District Council, said Mr. Gray, to refute at once the statement of Councilor Thompson so far as that Rural District was concerned. The bylaws in force in the Castlereagh Rural District with respect to new buildings and streets were very comprehensive, and, generally speaking, were at least equal to the bylaws in force in the City of Belfast.

In framing their bylaws, the Rural District Council had made special bylaws with respect to certain areas adjoining the city boundary, which called for streets 36ft. wide and constructed with a reinforced concrete carriageway, with flagged footpaths, and the Council had a building inspector to see that the provisions of the bylaws were properly carried out.

It was amazing to find a responsible representative of any public board endeavouring to discredit a neighbouring administration by such a gross misrepresentation of facts. If Councillor Thompson was not aware of the position in Castlereagh Rural District he never should have made the reckless and sweeping assertion to which he (Mr. Gray) referred.

Mr. Small, J.P., said he had noticed the statement referred to in the report of the special meeting of the Corporation

Mr. Gray said the statement was quite untrue.

The Council approved of the chairman's protest.

"AGENT FOR THREE COUNTRIES."

PLAN USEFUL TO ENEMY.

MAN CHARGED AT BOW STREET.

Writing down his evidence because of an impediment in his speech, Mr. St. John Frederick Burch, an inspector at Messrs. Vickers-Armstrong's works at Crayford, Kent, said that a man who was charged at Bow Street, London, on Friday, under the Official Secrets Act told him that he was an agent for Germany, Italy, and Soviet Russia.

Charged on remand with having, for a purpose prejudicial to the State, obtained a plan of a fuse-setting machine calculated to be useful to an enemy was Robinson Walker (48), described as a cloth merchant of Brentwood Road, Romford, Essex.

According to Mr. Burch, Walker entered into conversation with him while he was going home from work on July 21, and asked him how he would like to earn some money getting a few drawings. "After a little gossip about the men at Vickers, I left him saying I would get him the drawings," went on Mr. Burch.

"PLANS FOR RUSSIANS."

Mr. Burch said that he reported the matter to his employers and the next evening saw Walker again. Asked where he got the plans photographed, Walker replied: "At the Russian Delegation in Hatton Garden."

When he saw Walker on the 23rd Walker appeared to be angry because he had not got the drawings and said that when he (Burch) got them, there would be plenty of money.

Mr. Burch went on to say that on July 26 he met Walker again with the plans, which would be "invaluable to anyone with a knowledge of engineering." They went to his (Burch's) home and when he said he was feeling "windy" Walker told him that he was "windy" when he first started, but was used to it after 15 years. Walker said that he would have to take the plans to the Russians, and added that he had the details of the gun on the spitfire aircraft.

Mr. Ray Whiteway (defending)—Did he tell you that he wanted to try and invent a casing for this fuse-setter so as to make it easy for assembly?—No.

Detective Inspector Buckle said that Walker referring to the plans said: "I got these to have a look at for a fuse-setter because I want to see if I can improve on it."

The Inspector added that he later searched Walker's address and took possession of certain documents.

Mr. Vincent Evans, prosecuting, said that these notes apparently dealt with a new anti-aircraft machine gun and a new fitment to carry four Lewis guns.

WALKER'S STATEMENT.

Mr. Evans read a statement alleged to have been made by Walker in which he said that he had approached the trade delegation to the U.S.S.R., who were considering whether he should be employed by them to help in buying various instruments and machines being made in this country.

"I have given no secrets away whatever and would not do so," went on the statement.

"The whole idea that I was obsessed with was the sale of my invention. I had already offered it to the War Office and had had it turned down.

"If I wanted to take any blueprints, I could have done so while I was working at Vickers, but such a thing never entered my head."

Inspector Buckle agreed that Walker had offered his mobile lift invention to the War Office.

After the evidence of two expert witnesses had been heard in camera—the public and Press being cleared from the court—it was indicated that the case for the prosecution was concluded.

Walker, who pleaded not guilty and reserved his defence, was committed for trial at the Old Bailey. Bail was reduced to two sureties of £50 each.

JOURNALISTS' INSTITUTE

AND THE NOW FAMOUS "CASE 35A"

There was a further development on Friday in regard to "Case 35A" (the London motoring case).

The Institute of Journalists at its monthly meeting had before it a letter from Mr. R. L. Marshall, a member of the Institute, forwarding correspondence which had passed between Mr. Claud Mullins, the South-Western Police Court Magistrate, and himself.

A sub-committee was appointed to watch developments and empowered to take such action as might become necessary.

LOST FRENCH SCHOOLBOY.

FOUND IN LONDON HOTEL.

The 14-year-old French boy, Guy Bahry, who disappeared in London after his school near Epsom broke up for the summer vacation a few weeks ago, has been found

He was on his way from school to his parents' home in France when he vanished. On Friday the police were informed that he had been staying at a residential hotel near the Marble Arch. They communicated with his father, and the boy was given into his charge at Marylebone Police Station.

HE WON £350,000 IN DUBLIN SWEEP.

NOW SELLS ICE-CREAM.

SADDER AND WISER MAN.

STILL HAS A FEW POUNDS LEFT.

Emilio Scala, Italian proprietor of a Battersea cafe, who won over £350,000 in the Grand National Sweep, is back in London selling ice cream. The wheel of fortune has taken seven years to complete a full circle, but now with the bulk of his fortune gone Emilio is happy again.

In North End Road, Fulham, where street stalls of every description line the kerbside, and not far from his former cafe, I found him yesterday selling ice cream cornets to the London urchins, writes a "Star" reporter.

Scala has opened a green and cream painted shop on the site of an old stable. There is no name over the door and nothing likely to give unwanted notoriety—simply the words: "Ice cream parlour." Scala is a wiser man than he was on the day he received more than £80,000, his share in the prize.

He has learned that where there are riches there can also be unhappiness.

"I still have a few pounds left," he told me. "But now all the worry of that amount of money is over. My wife and I have come back to the life and work we understand.

"People think it must be good to have a fortune dumped at their door, and then do the things they have always wanted to do. But it is a man's work that counts.

"I have known the worst poverty—my father brought up a family of 14 on 7s a week—and I have had every ease and luxury that money can bring. Now I tell you I still have to work at something like this to be really happy.

"I had to do something because all my relatives—I once counted 49 of them—seem to have spent the money I gave them unwisely. Now they have nothing. I have opened this shop mostly for their benefit. I do not want any profits myself."

Some of Scala's money went to sharks who traded on his good nature. He has still kept smiling.

When I asked him if it had been worth it, he replied that is the sort of question that could only be answered by Bernard Shaw. He has known what it is like to stand on a soap box and shout and what it is like to live in comfort.

Scala's ambition is to start a chain of ice cream shops. It is the only trade that the majority of Italians in London understand, he said.

ULSTER DROWNING ACCIDENTS.

BELFAST-DERRY VICTIMS.

TEN-YEAR-OLD BOY IN EACH CASE.

The victim of the drowning accident in the Lagan at Shaw's Bridge on Friday, has been identified as Arthur John M'Burney, aged 10, of Palestine Street, Belfast.

The boy was bathing when he got into difficulties. He was rescued by a young man named John Bamford, but artificial respiration was unavailing. An inquest will be held next week.

While bathing in a pond at Talbot Park, a few miles from Derry on Friday, James Smith (10), of Greenhaw Lane, was drowned.

Smith was bathing with several other boys when he suddenly disappeared.

Grappling operations were carried out, but so far the body has not been recovered.

INLAND RIVER BATHING.

CORONER STRESSES DANGER.

At an inquest at Rathdrum (Co. Wicklow) on Henry Monaghan (18), of Glassnarget, who was drowned in the Avonmore River, a verdict of accidental death was returned.

The coroner (Dr. T. J. Hamilton) said in view of the fact that there had been upwards of 13 deaths in inland rivers during the past week, and that in recent years there had been several drownings in this river, a sign should be erected on the danger spots.

SALVATION ARMY CHIEF.

GENERAL BOOTH'S DECISION.

A statement by General Evangeline Booth before the end of the month will set at rest the uneasiness among Salvationists regarding the leadership of the Salvation Army in the immediate future.

The General wishes to retire, and would be placed on the retired list automatically on Christmas Day. I gather that she will remain in office for another six months and possibly a year, writes the "Star" Diarist.

In any case the General will make a farewell tour of army centres in this country.

Since she succeeded General Higgins four years ago she has travelled round the world and has visited outposts overseas. The Salvationists at home have seen little of her.

The legal steps in connection with another term of office are laid down precisely in the Salvation Army Act of 1931. Two-thirds of the Army's Council must sign a requisition asking her to remain.

If this is not done the Chief of Staff must call the entire Council from their posts throughout the world, and the instruction must be issued by August 30. The election of a new leader must take place within six weeks.

"SECRET CAMERA IN ROOM."

COUNSEL'S ALLEGATION

IN MENACES CHARGE.

A camera secreted in a room was mentioned by prosecuting counsel in a case at Chatham yesterday.

George Alfred Stangroom, 21, described as a dockyard labourer, of Richmond Road, Gillingham, was charged with uttering letters, the contents of which he knew, demanding money with menaces and also with threatening to accuse a man of a crime with intent to extort money from him.

"The blackmailer knows he must predominate over his victim and in this case the defendant seems to have been a very clever opportunist," said Mr. Philip Bracher prosecuting. "Blackmailers seem to experiment to see how they can get their victim down and thus get a hold over him."

The complainant in the case was referred to as Mr. "Y."

Mr. Bracher said that Mr. "Y" was a single man, aged 24, and had worked with Stangroom at Chatham Naval Dockyard. It was alleged that between October, 1936, and the present time Stangroom obtained £130 from "Y" in addition to inducing him to commit certain improper acts.

"THREAT OF LIBEL."

Mr. Bracher said Stangroom started by threatening to bring a libel action against "Y" because Stangroom said "Y" had made a statement that Stangroom had got a young lady into trouble. After "Y" had foolishly let Stangroom have £4, Stangroom continued to prey on his mind and induced "Y" to commit certain improper acts. On one occasion there was a click and Stangroom afterwards said he had secreted a camera in the room which had taken a photograph of "Y" and according to the prosecution Stangroom declared: "Now I have got you where I want you."

Stangroom had promised several times to leave "Y" alone and once had written: "I, George Alfred Stangroom, promise to take my oath on the Bible never to re-open the case and this is my word for all time."

"Y" at last went to the police and then wrote to Stangroom saying: "You have spoiled my life. It has been Hell for the last 18 months. You have had all my money and I am now in low water due to the money I have loaned to you. You have ruined my life. How much do you want to go out of my life."

"Y" went to Stangroom's house with a letter which had been arranged by the police for Stangroom to sign in exchange for receiving £4 from "Y." When the police entered the house Stangroom produced the £4 which had previously been initialled by Detective Inspector J. F. Sharp, Chief of the Chatham C.I.D.

Mr. "Y," in evidence, said—"He was making my life hell upon earth."

Stangroom had threatened to show the photographs that were alleged to have been taken by Stangroom to his ("Y's") sweetheart. "Y" said that he was contemplating getting married, but could not unless Stangroom returned the money.

Stangroom was committed for trial at the Kent Assizes. Bail allowed.

LINEN TRADE REVIEW

Difficulties Of The Price Problem

Dullness of Business—Linen Orders for Ships—Unsatisfactory Prices—Undercurrent of Confidence—The Unemployment Figures—Ulster Flax Crop—Spinning Wheel Period Gone.

(By a Special Correspondent).

BUSINESS in most of the warehouses [illegible] past week has been dull. In [illegible] certain "departments" have [illegible] on alternate weeks, and in [illegible] full number of employes have [illegible] required. All, however, are [illegible] that when the Anglo-United adjustment of tariffs takes place [illegible] rapidly improve.

[illegible] continue, the home trade is our [illegible] stay, but this market is [illegible] with eager sellers, making it difficult to do business at profitable [illegible] the finer classes of damask [illegible] good demand for cloths and [illegible] rayon, with very elaborate patterns, surmounted by hand [illegible] effects in delicate shades. [illegible] damask the demand is mostly [illegible] lower or ordinary qualities made [illegible] smaller sizes of cloths to come at [illegible] prices.

There are also a good many damasks in [illegible] outfits for steamers now in the [illegible] stage of preparation. Such linen orders including damask towelling, bed [illegible] and kitchen cloths are very important both in quantity and value.

Regarding the Dominion and Colonial [illegible] Australia is now our best customer, [illegible] from us steady supplies in all [illegible] of household goods. This [illegible] is closely followed by South [illegible] which country there are many [illegible] development in the way of [illegible] linens.

CANADA RECOVERING.

Canada is also slowly recovering its old [illegible] and these three countries are [illegible] a great deal to keep the linen trade steady as far as our Colonial trade is concerned.

Concerning our Continental trade, there is very little doing in linen piece goods, our chief exports being linen yarns. These yarns are being sent steadily to Belgium, Germany, Sweden, and sometimes to Italy, thus helping to keep up [illegible] connection with Continental countries.

As to South America, orders from Brazil have been improving lately, and that country comes high among our list of important customers.

The Argentine has not been buying [illegible] of late, the chief reason being that she has overstocked herself with linens and other textiles. The trade of the country is, however, good, and she will soon make up for the lapse, it is thought. Regarding prices of finished cloth, these are not satisfactory. During the depression which has now prevailed for a few months past, stocks have been sold at prices at which they could not be replaced, and this has made it difficult to obtain economic prices from keen buyers. The result has, therefore, been that goods have been sold in some cases at cost of production or even lower, making the price question a very difficult one for sellers.

WOULD BRING IMPROVEMENT.

If the United States and Chinese questions were settled this would bring about an improvement in demand, which would enable manufacturers and merchants to hold out for full economic prices.

Germany is reported to be negotiating with the Latvian Government for the purchase of the 3,000 tons of flax which are still unsold by the latter country.

In Lille there is a slight improvement in trade, and it is said that dry-spun yarns in particular are in improved demand in certain counts and qualities.

An Ulster linen manufacturer, when asked this week by an acquaintance how business was faring, is said to have replied cheerily that things were better. "Six months ago half of my looms were empty. Now half of them are full."

This story may be true or an invention, but it does mirror the market. All sections of the Ulster linen industry are still sluggish, but there is an undercurrent of confidence which was absent before the temporary spurt in trading which took place on the eve of the holidays.

At first blush the linen trade unemployment figures, issued this week by the Northern Ireland Ministry of Labour, are rather startling, as they reveal a total of 34,598 unemployed, a percentage rate of 58.7. It must be remembered, however, that these returns were collected on July 18 when a very large number of the mills, factories, and works were closed for the holidays. On the date in question there were 6,818 men and 19,848 women unemployed, 2,720 men and 5,194 women temporarily stopped, and 18 male casual workers unemployed. The figures for the previous month, showing an Ulster linen trade unemployment percentage rate of 38.4, is probably approximately correct since the works reopened.

RAW MATERIAL SALES.

Rather more business was transacted this week in raw material, chiefly in Baltic flaxes, which tend to advance in price, due partly to the rise in the price of gold, which automatically increases sterling quotations, and possibly to the fear that the Far Eastern situation may reduce still further the exports of flax and tow from Soviet Russia. Last year the United Kingdom imported 7,200 tons of flax and 9,300 tons of flax tow from the U.S.S.R.

Flax pulling is now in full swing in Soviet Russia. The total flax area in Russia this season is forecast at 4,575,000 acres as against 5,450,000 acres in 1937. In White Russia the flax is reported to have attained unusual height this season, and quality is stated to have improved in the Leningrad, Jaroslav, Gorki, Kirov, and Ukraine areas.

On Monday tenders will be considered for the supply of a million yards of sheeting canvas of flax tow for South African railways. This may have a marked effect on the market for tows. The Latvian flax monopoly is holding out firmly for good prices for its small remaining balance of Riga Livonian, and reports few transactions apart from some small sales to Czecho-Slovakia. Ulster spinners have been buying normal quantities of fibre in the Courtrai market, but they have had to pay advances in numerous instances. Belgium is becoming the chief world source of raw material for the linen industry since Russia and the Baltic States are indifferent sellers, and the Flemish flax dealers are taking full advantage of this.

BIDDING IN COURTRAI MARKETS.

Recently German flax importers obtained additional import licences, and this has resulted in competitive bidding in the Courtrai markets, particularly as regards medium and high grade material. For a long period German spinners have been active negotiators in Continental flax centres, and this may seem surprising, as Hitler has forced up the German output of home-grown scutched flax from 3,100 tons in 1933 to 33,900 tons in 1937. Reasons for this are believed to be, firstly that the quality and [illegible] of the German crop is very disappointing and secondly that the German [illegible] industry is using up a big tonnage [illegible] material on linens for the War [illegible]

Continental flax and tow values showed slight increases during the week under review. Fourth Group Slanetz, Group 1, now stands at £87 to £88; Ralo [illegible] No. 8, at £68 to £69; Latvian Livonian, R. at £71 10s to £72 10s; Pererro-Petschory Halves, R. at £70 to £71, and Lithuanian flax, Group R. at £62 to £63—all per ton, [illegible] United Kingdom. Nominal [illegible] in Ulster of machine-hackled, water-retted tows, medium quality are as follows:—Courtrai £63 (roughing), £67 (No. 1), £71 (No. 2), and £75 (Nos. 3 and 4); Irish £57 (roughing), £60 (No. 1), £63 (No. 2), and £66 (Nos. 3 and 4), £54 (No. 1), £56 (No 2), and £58 (Nos. 3 and 4), all per ton.

Nominal Irish linen yarn values:—Sheer warps 90's to 110's, 7s 4½d per bundle; 150's, 8s 6d per bundle. Cambric warps 75's to 85's, 7s 4½d per bundle; 100's, 7s 9d per bundle. Tow wefts, 12's, 15s 6d per bundle; 14's, 13s 3d; 16's, 12s 6d; 18's, 11s 6d; 25's, 10s; and 40's 7s 6d per bundle. Line wefts, 40's, 8s 9d per bundle; 50's, 7s 9d; 80's to 130's, 6s 9d per bundle; 140's, 6s 10½d; and 150's, 7s 1½d per bundle. All per bundle of 60,000 yards of grey yarn, average quality, subject to usual trade discounts.

Nominal Scottish dry spun linen yarn values:—Tow weft, 3lbs., 2s 11d per spindle; 3¼lbs., 3s 2d per spindle; 4lbs., 3s 5d per spindle. Tow warp, 3½lbs., 3s 7d per spindle; 4lbs., 3s 10d; 5lbs., 4s 6d; 2½lbs., 3s 5d; and 3lbs., 3s 11d per spindle. Flax warp, 4lbs. to 5lbs., 1s 3d per lb.; 2½lbs. flax, three-ply, 1s 8d per lb.; 2lbs. three-ply, 1s 6d per lb. Under the Scotch system of yarn numbering the yarn number indicates the weight of a spindle or spangle of 48cwts., or 14,400 yards.

IRISH FLAX TOPICS.

The official forecast that the Northern Ireland flax area this season will total 20,532 acres as against 19,099 acres in 1937 has occasioned no little surprise as sowings took place before the Government Flax Grant was announced and at a period when Ulster farmers were threatening to boycott the crop. This threat, it is believed, led to larger flax sowings in Eire this season, notably in Counties Cavan and Monaghan, but the Free State flax area is unlikely to greatly exceed 5,000 acres.

Taking the yield of the Ulster crop at the 1937 yield of 35.1 stones of scutched flax per acre, this season's Ulster crop should yield over 4,500 tons, and over 5,500 tons if the Free State output is included. The total flax area in England and Scotland this year is expected to be around 3,000 acres, yielding, say, some 650 tons of scutched fibre. In other words, these islands should produce a total of around 6,150 tons of flax this year as against imports of around 55,000 tons of foreign fibre. Let us hope that the home farmer will soon enable us to bridge this gap and render Irish linen really Irish.

The recent demonstrations of machine flax-pulling, if they did nothing else, were a good advertisement for flax production. Not only were the tests witnessed by hundreds of Ulster farmers, but agricultural experts from the Free State also came, saw and intend to buy. It is not difficult to visualise modern scutch mills springing up this side of the border to process flax from Eire. There are no flax spinning mills in Eire, and there seems no reason why Ulstermen should not ret and scutch the Free State fibre as well as spin it.

IRISH PROBLEMS.

The Irish Flax Committee have met on many occasions since they held their inaugural session on July 1. They have been exceedingly energetic, but the problems which confront them are not easy of solution and they cannot be expected to evolve a clear-cut scheme in six weeks as some critics seem to expect. It is as illogical to ask them to make statements now as to expect a doctor to make a comprehensive diagnosis and specify treatment when he has merely looked at the patient's tongue. A few days ago the Northern Ireland Flax (Scutch) Millowners' Association issued a statement to the effect that they have no faith in central retteries on the following grounds:—

(1) The cost of erecting and maintaining central retteries would add 1s to 2s per stone overhead charges to the resultant fibre.

(2) The difficulty of drying straw on the fields except in an abnormally dry season would be insuperable and even in a dry season the fibre would lose both in quantity and quality.

(3) The cost of transit of the dry straw to the retteries would be prohibitive.

Few who have investigated modern methods of flax production will agree with the foregoing. The argument that the latest type of equipment will increase overheads is far from convincing, to say the least, and reeks of the type of reasoning popular in the early days of the industrial revolution.

MUST CHANGE WTH TIMES.

Irish flax growing is surely doomed unless it adapts itself to changed conditions. The Irish linen trade is no longer in the spinning wheel period. Central retteries have been established wherever flax is a paying crop, because they have made flax an attractive and remunerative crop to the farmer. The manager of an English central flax rettery explained to me this week how his firm enters into contracts with farmers in the vicinity to grow a specified acreage for them at a fixed price per ton. This year they contracted for over 2,000 acres. The rettery supplies the sowing seed without charge, but it remains their property. The farmers harvest the flax under factory supervision, and both the retting and scutching is performed by the factory. The grower is remunerated by graded prices (fixed before he sows) in three classifications:—(a) The quality of flax that will produce line; (b) the crop that will only produce tossed flax for tow; and (c) flax grown for seed. This firm finds it pays them to buy flax straw as far as 20 miles from the rettery.

I understand that a variation of this system has been in operation in the Dromara district of County Down for the past few years. Probably there is a big field for the exploitation of the by-products of flax scutching, such as shive, which could be used in the manufacture of building board, etc.

LINEN VERSUS RAYON.

"Linen Exporter," in a letter which appeared in the correspondence columns of this paper on August 5, advances the view that the over-riding problem which confronts our linen industry is not competition from our foreign rivals, but the ousting of linen—particularly in the apparel field, and to a lesser degree in the already contracted damask trade—by rayons (artificial silks) of both staple fibre and filament productions. "It is beyond dispute," he declared, "that recent U.S. domestic production of staple fibre textile designed for apparel purposes is to a considerable extent responsible for the current stagnation in linen productions here and elsewhere."

Is "Linen Exporter" justified in indicting rayon as Public Enemy No. 1 of the linen industry? Whilst admitting that rayon is at present a formidable rival of linen in certain classes of goods, I, for one, cannot endorse the view that artificial silk is the arch enemy of flax. That a purely synthetic fibre should permanently displace or render obsolete any of the genuine textile fibres is surely unthinkable. In this contention I find support in the Government report on industrial fibres, issued last week by the Imperial Economic Committee, in which there is the following heartening paragraph: "While large quantities of mixed rayon tissues are produced in the U.S.A., neither in that country nor in the United Kingdom is there direct evidence of rayon or staple fibre definitely displacing other fibres." At present the linen industry is gravely handicapped by the scarcity and high price of flax.

NO RAW MATERIAL PROBLEMS.

Rayon producers, on the other hand, have no worries about raw material supplies as their principal materials are cotton linters and wood-pulp. Thus, it follows, that rayon prices are not subject to the same fluctuations as natural fibres. The cellulose obtained from the foregoing is treated chemically and dissolved in a solvent, after which it is extruded through jets into a coagulating bath or into warm air. Numbers of the filaments thus obtained are twisted together to make yarn. There are four different processes for the manufacture of rayon, their products being viscose, cellulose, acetate, cuprammonium and nitrocellulose rayon. Viscose rayon is the cheapest to produce, and is easily the most important product in all countries. Staple fibre is obtained by cutting rayon filaments into regular lengths, after which it may be spun, according to fineness, on cotton or worsted machinery. Like rayon, it possesses the advantages of being uniform in staple length and fineness, and the percentage of waste is very small. It is well adapted for mixture with other fibres, and is very largely viscose in process. Estimated world production of staple fibre in 1937 was 619,000,000lb. Germany, Japan, and Italy, in that order, are the largest producers of staple fibre, together manufacturing about 88 per cent. of world production. The only other producers of importance are the U.K., U.S.A., and France. The estimated world output of rayon yarn in 1937 was 1,210 million lbs., Japan and the U.S.A. together accounting for about 57 per cent. of this figure. The largest rayon company in the United States is the Viscose Corporation controlled by Courtaulds. It has been estimated that last year the United States consumed cotton goods worth 357.4 million dollars, rayon goods worth 186.9 million dollars and linen goods worth 23.1 million dollars. The development of large scale rayon production is as yet of too recent date for its influence on the output trend of natural fibres to be gauged with any degree of accuracy. It is known, however, that the production of rayon and staple fibre last year was more than four times as great as in 1930, and approximated in volume to wool and flax output. Silk has undoubtedly been the chief victim of rayon's fight for a place in the sun, but it is noteworthy that during the past five years the United States has imported nearly 70 per cent of the total world imports of silk. The United Kingdom is responsible for the greater part of the rayon and staple fibre produced in the British Empire, but only 13 per cent. of the world production of rayon and 7 per cent. of the staple fibre is produced in Britain. My opinion, for what it is worth, is that the man-made synthetic fibres will only supersede nature's fibres when artificial flowers replace real flowers or when a woman can be cozened to the point where she prefers the imitation to the real article.

CHALLENGE TO SILK.

That rayon has affected other textiles besides linen is undoubtedly true. It has challenged silk directly. It has thrown down the gauntlet, and because it is a new industry backed by almost unlimited financial resources it has set a new pace in the industrial world. In this period of industrial depression, rayon's disadvantages are frankly admitted, and just as readily overlooked by a buying public ever on the lookout for new types of merchandise—fabrics embodying that elusive something that satisfies a demand for style at moderate cost.

Unquestionably the changed conditions in modern life are largely responsible for the decreased consumption of linens, but the industry is gradually adapting itself to the social changes which have come about due to new types of merchandise and new wealth. There seems little doubt that the post-war comforts and luxuries are making far greater headway than the basic industries or the necessities. That people now skimp on familiar types of expenditure such as household textiles in order to obtain new and more exciting satisfactions in the form of motor-cars, wireless sets, etc., is obvious. All the textiles have suffered from the reduction in women's clothing. Thus, the introduction of central heating has frightened underwear manufacturers, and we have changed our ways in dress to meet other modern conditions. Incidentally it is an interesting fact that if one scans the fashions of the last 50 years it will be noticed that the dress of the hostess and the dress of her table have pretty much paralleled each other. Dining tables hid their legs when women did so. When skirts swept the ground so did tablecloths. As laps have grown smaller, the longer napkins of more spacious days have become extinct. Damask will boom when formality returns to social affairs.

MODERN ART MOVEMENT.

To-day those interested in the retail selling or buying of linens cannot afford to ignore (no more than the linen manufacturer) the modern art movement, because it is changing the thoughts and desires of the buying public. It has already affected architecture, advertising, interior decoration, the style of our motor-car, the shape of our watch. Such changes of style are fundamental and not merely a whim of fashion.

"Linen Exporter" contends that linen interests in all quarters must recognise the common danger, and pull together for the common good. The Ulster linen trade has been working along these lines ever since the war, and that individualism which previously was its main characteristic is giving way before serious efforts towards combinaton. That is the reason why we have these newly-fledged organisations, the Linen Industry Research Association and the Linen Guild, as have the competitive cotton, woollen and silk industries. All along the line textile men are in a fever of activity readjusting themselves to unprecedented conditions. Except for rayon we are all engaged in very ancient industries. Perhaps we got used to taking things for granted; we thought we dealt in staple commodities, and that all we had to do was to sit back and accept the orders that regularly rolled in. Suddenly the trade awoke to a world where nothing can be taken for granted, where there are no staple commodities, where everything has to fight for its place in the sun. The Ulster linen industry is modernising conditions and exploring every nook and corner for new uses. These are lively days in the linen world, if not in the linen market.

"MOSCOW CANNOT BE TRUSTED."

JAPANESE DISCOVERY.

LOOK FOR FRESH TROUBLE

AFTER A FEW MONTHS.

The Japanese, while welcoming the truce on the Soviet border, intimates that Moscow's pledge cannot be trusted, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" Tokio correspondent. The Foreign Office last night issued a fuller but still incomplete statement on the conversations between Mr. Shigemitsu, the Japanese Ambassador in Moscow, and M. Litvinoff, the Soviet Foreign Minister.

After numerous talks with Japanese of all classes I am convinced that the fear of a Soviet attack on Japan in the not far distant future still prevails on the Japanese mind.

The gist of their comments is: "The so-called peace will endure for a few months only and then the border incidents will be renewed. When this happens will it be possible to adjust the situation again?"

The "Kokumin" states that the Japanese authorities on the border admit the alleviation of the situation, but do not think it is permanent. The "Hochi" asserts that it is unlikely that the Soviet troops on the border will obey instructions from Moscow.

STOPPING THE "RED LIGHT JUMPERS."

NEW TRAFFIC SIGNAL.

AMERICAN INVENTION.

A new road traffic signal designed to stop motorists and pedestrians from "jumping the red light" is being studied by officials of the State Registry of Motor Vehicles at Quincy, near Boston (Mass.).

The light is the invention of Mr. Arthur M. Loungway, of Endicott, New York. It consists of an aluminium encased circle of 16 bulbs, 15 of white, one red. The white lights indicate the number of seconds before the light is about to change, with the red bulb providing the final warning, thus eliminating the possibility of a motorist being caught by a changing light at an intersection.

WHITE GIRAFFE "SHOT."

A big-game hunter has just returned to New York with the first authentic pictures ever taken of a white giraffe. He is Colonel A. J. MacNab, president of the Camp Fire Club of America, who has been on an expedition to East Africa. The giraffe, a bull, was located by Colonel MacNab in Kenya.

"I was the first of our party to see it," said the Colonel, a former U.S. military attache to Mexico. "It was then three miles away, and it took three more days to get a good camera shot of it. I didn't attempt to shoot it because of its rarity."

The party did, however, really shoot the largest giraffe ever recorded in British, French, and American museums. It was 18 feet 11 inches in height. Another fine capture was a bull elephant of record size whose tusks weighed 105 and 110 pounds each. It was 12 feet four inches from heel to shoulder.

THE BEGGAR'S FORTUNE.

Police at Marseilles are trying to find out how a beggar came into possession of a fortune of 120,000 francs which was found on him when he was arrested. The man, Raymond Alban, was arrested as a vagabond. He was searched and beneath his vest was found a bag containing 1,100 francs in cash and treasury notes and other bonds worth 120,000 francs. He declared this wealth was the result of his economical mode of living, but the police are not satisfied, and the man is being detained pending inquiries.

ALL DEPENDS ON THIS FROG.

A pet that requires no attention and issues a weather forecast is kept by a farm household at Umboe, in Southern Rhodesia. It is a frog.

Every year, as soon as the dry season sets in, this frog appears and hops through one of the windows of the house into a particular room. He perches himself on a ledge above the window and settles down. There, for several months, he sleeps, the only sign of life being a faint pulsation in his throat. Care is taken not to disturb his rest. Dust silts down on to him and slowly his colour changes from grey to white.

Then, just two days before the rains come, the spectre stirs, gives a few croaks, and leaps out of the window to vanish until the next dry season.

A PLACE IN THE SUNN.

Large samples of Southern Rhodesia sunn-hemp stalks have been sent overseas for experiments on the extraction of the fibre.

This is a result of a recent visit paid by a member of the Southern Rhodesian Parliament to the manufacturers of fibre extracting machinery in Leeds.

The main point to be investigated is whether the fibre can be extracted and cleaned by means of machinery and thus avoid the difficult operation of "retting" and cleaning by hand. Another question relates to the most suitable stage in the growth of sunn-hemp for the purpose. To determine this samples have been cut at intervals from nine to twenty weeks after planting.

Manufacturers are particularly interested in this experiment as sunn-hemp yields a very valuable fibre.

A STONE FOR A RHODES.

The Dean of Grahamstown recently dedicated a stone which has been placed over the grave of Rhodes Njube Lobengula in the native cemetery at Grahamstown, Cape Province.

Rhodes Lobengula's father was the eldest son of the last King of the Matabele, a powerful, war-like tribe that 50 years ago dominated what is now Southern Rhodesia.

The erection of the stone was made possible by a collection amongst friends of the deceased in that colony, assisted by the Government.

SPEEDING UP TURKISH JUSTICE.

The delays in Turkish criminal procedure by which two and even three years have sometimes elapsed before the final verdict of the court has been given, will be eliminated by the extension of a system of summary jurisdiction already operating for minor cases where the offender is caught "red-handed" and there is little argument as to the facts. This system is now to be extended to major crimes and even to murder if the case is obvious.

Judges will not be able to inflict the death penalty, however, under the new procedure, though they can impose sentences up to 20 years' penal servitude.

It is considered that the prospect of speedy punishment will have a salutary effect upon the criminal classes.

SAVED HIS LIFE BY BITING BULL

Wit Klaas, a coloured man, from a farm in the Malmesbury district (Cape Province, South Africa) has saved his life by biting a bull. He was tossed and gored by a bull on the farm. As he lay pinned to the ground with the bull kneeling on his chest his dog ran up and snapped at the bull's ears. The enraged animal turned its head slightly to poke a horn into the dog's ribs. Wit Klaas then seized the large ring in the bull's nose and launched an attack which saved his life. He dragged the animal's head down and bit into the tender flesh on the head. The bull bellowed in agony, tossing its head to loosen the grip, but Wit Klaas hung on biting again and again. The owner of the farm had been called and was about to shoot the bull when it managed to free itself and bolted away. Wit Klaas was badly bruised and his thigh was torn, but no bones were broken. The bull was rounded up later and needed more treatment than Wit Klaas had received. The ring was bitten almost out of its nose. There was a long wound over one eye and its ears were badly lacerated. There were many teeth marks on other parts of its head.

"PRONOUNCING BEES" NEXT?

A proposal has been made at Potchefstroom (Transvaal) that the South African Broadcasting Corporation should introduce "pronouncing bees" as a variation to "spelling bees," which are at present very popular on the air in the Union.

In a "pronouncing bee" words would be spelled out to teams for them to give the correct pronounciation.

It is pointed out that the English language contains hundreds if not thousands of words in every day use which are "tricky" to pronounce and are, in fact generally mispronounced judged by dictionary standards.—Reuter.

JEWS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

IMMIGRATION FIGURES.

The South African Minister of the Interior, Mr. Stuttaford, states that 1,059 Jews entered the Union in 1935, 3,330 in 1936, 954 in 1937, and 281 in the first six months of the present year, wires the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" Capetown correspondent. In the case of Austrian Jews permits for permanent residence in the Union have been granted to only three married men, three married women and one child since April 1, 1938.

SEPTUAGENARIAN ACTOR

DIES IN LONDON STREET.

Walter Uridge, the only member of the original cast of "The Belle of New York," and who had played his part in successive revivals of the show over 6,000 times, collapsed in the Strand, London, and died yesterday at the age of 78.

He knew his part, that of "Muggs," so well that, as he said, he played it sometimes in his sleep. "It's a wonderful show," he observed a few years ago. "Revivals of it have really never finished."

The first performance of "The Belle" was given in London in 1898, when Mr. Uridge was an understudy.

MAKING ENGLISH BANKNOTES

WHEN THE POLICE ARRIVED

THREE ARRESTED IN FRANCE.

PARIS, Friday.—Three arrests were made by the French Detective Department in Paris to-day following a patient investigation into the origin of bogus 50 and 100 franc notes, and sheets of postage stamps placed in circulation all over the country (states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" correspondent).

In a studio at De Clichy, supposedly belonging to an animated picture producing firm, the police came upon a complete plant for printing bogus banknotes.

They promptly arrested the occupant of the studio, a former Roumanian Army officer, who was in the act of preparing to print a number of bogus £5 Bank of England notes, and also took into custody a Frenchwoman, Gabrielle Fontenoy.

The man, whose name is Iliesce, was closely questioned and gave the name of one of his accomplices, a man named Lucien Bourgeart, formerly a grain dealer, who put up as a candidate for Parliament in 1932 and obtained seven votes. Bourgeart was arrested at a hotel in Montmartre.

THEY PREFER TO BE BRITISH.

The "London Gazette" on Friday night contained the names of 188 aliens to whom certificates of naturalisation were registered in July. The total includes 26 Germans, 19 Italians, 15 Americans, 15 French, 8 Austrians, and 6 Czecho-Slovaks. Thirty-six certificates related to women of British origin.

CRIMSON BANNER FLIES AGAIN IN DERRY

GREAT CITY ASSEMBLY

TO COMMEMORATE RELIEF

OVER 750 JOIN THE ORDER

EIRE BRETHREN WELCOMED

FROM practically every town and hamlet in Ulster went Apprentice Boys to Derry to-day to celebrate the 249th anniversary of the relief of the Maiden City.

IN ADDITION TO LOYALISTS FROM EAST DONEGAL THERE WERE VISITING APPRENTICE BOYS FROM LIVERPOOL, WHILE GLASGOW AND OTHERS PARTS OF SCOTLAND WERE REPRESENTED.

The decision that the anniversary should be commemorated to-day was made to convenience the many Apprentice Boys from Belfast and other parts of the Province who find Saturday the most suitable day for travelling.

The dawn of the anniversary was, as customary, heralded by the discharge of cannon from the historic Mall Wall.

The spectacular feature was the procession from the Mall Wall to the ancient Cathedral for the annual service. This year the preacher was the Rev. C. I. Peacocke, M.A., St. Mark's, Dundela, Belfast.

Crowds lined the route, and every vantage point was occupied as the processionists made their way to the Cathedral.

From an early hour Derry, which was ablaze with colour, was thronged with visitors.

Seventeen special trains on the L M S Railway and the Great Northern Railway arrived in the city, bringing visitors from Belfast, Lisburn, Omagh, Lurgan, Portadown, Ballymena, Ballymoney, Coleraine, and other parts of the Province.

The principal streets in the Unionist quarters were gay with arches and other decorations, in which the crimson colour of the Siege predominated.

From the Cathedral, the bells of which were rung, the Memorial Hall, and the Governor Walker Monument, crimson flags were flown.

Excellent arrangements to deal with the big crowd were made by the police, under the supervision of County-Inspector Lenthall, O.B.E., and District-Inspector Lynn. In addition to some 40 extra R.U.C. men drawn from the county, about 100 men of the Derry "B" Special Constabulary were on duty.

The ceremony of initiation is one that can take place only within the historic walls. One must come to Derry to become an Apprentice Boy. To-day more than 750 Loyalists came for that purpose. For the first time on a "Twelfth" anniversary the recently completed Memorial Hall was used for the initiation ceremony, which was performed by Brs. Wesley Goodman and R. Little.

GOVERNOR'S GREETING.

In a message of greeting to the Apprentice Boys Br. M. Kerr, Governor (who is also City Grand Master of the Orange Institution), specially welcomed the brethren from Eire. Every corner of Ulster, he said, is represented here to-day. For the past 60 years we have been told that each is to be our last "Twelfth." Apparently, however, it is all the other way about. Year after year we are increasing in numbers, though some people would like to believe we are down and out. Believe me we were never in a more flourishing condition. There is no reason why our numbers should not be doubled — there is nothing in the Apprentice Boys' Order to be ashamed of. It stands for freedom and religious liberty; more than can be said of some countries that boast their Christianity—one-sided—and we know their position to-day. Stand shoulder to shoulder, said the Governor, and support those we have placed in authority as we have done in the past, never forgetting that the great liberty we enjoy was secured at great sacrifice, and upon its value we cannot set a price. With God's help, he added, we shall continue to honour the King, love the brotherhood, ever remembering that our watchword, as of old, is "No Surrender."

There were scenes of the utmost enthusiasm during the assembly of the brethren on the Mall Wall. A noteworthy feature was the many bands in the procession, which was marshalled by Br. James H. Lapsley, General Secretary, assisted by Brs. Robert Graham and James Kilgore, and shortly after 11 a.m. moved off to the Cathedral, the route being via Magazine Street, Shipquay Street, Diamond (East), Bishop Street, and St. Columb's Court.

THE PROCESSIONAL ORDER.

The order of the procession, which was headed by the Britannia Brass and Reed Band, was:—

LEADERS OF THE PROCESSION.

At the head of the procession were Brs. M. Kerr (Governor), M. S. Moore, H.M.L., J.P. (Lieutenant-Governor); Jas. J. Lapsley (general secretary), Alex. Birney (treasurer), R. J. Finlay (chaplain), Sir James Wilton, M.C.; M. M'Cay, J.P.; E. S. Murphy, K.C., M.P.; Attorney-General; Major R. Stanley, Belfast; Major H. C. Robinson, M.P., Larne; Rev. W. C. Cowden, M.A., Larne; Hume Babington, solicitor; Captain D. C. Lindsay, Wallace Kennedy, B. J. D. Brooke, R. J. Smith (chairman), James White (vice-chairman), A. S. Moore, M.M. The Mid-Ulster Amalgamated Committee was represented by Brs. Herbert M'Cullough (chairman), John Hughes (vice-chairman), Isaac Colvin (treasurer), Herbert W. Thompson (secretary), George Clark (chaplain), and Robert Gallagher (tyler).

Sir Ronald Ross, Bart., wired that as he was going on a trip to America he would not be able to attend.

Mrs. Gilliland, Derry, Deputy Grand Mistress of the Orange Order in Ireland, sent a congratulatory telegram from England.

The procession included many stalwarts and amongst them were Brs. John Ferguson, who joined the Order 64 years ago; Geo. C. Caldwell and Robert Sherrard, each of whom has had half a century in the institution; and Andrew Creswell, sen., who has been a member for 40 years. These brethren are all of Derry and are associated with the Browning Club.

THE DIAMOND CEREMONY.

The ceremony at the Diamond, where, in the presence of a large assembly, a wreath was laid on the War Memorial, was a deeply impressive one.

When the procession reached the Diamond all flags and banners were dipped in salute to the fallen, and the Britannia Brass and Reed Band played the Dead March in "Saul."

Br. E. S. Murphy, accompanied by the Governor and the General Secretary, then left the ranks and placed a wreath at the foot of the memorial.

Following the observance of Two Minutes Silence the band played "The Supreme Sacrifice," followed by the National Anthem.

THE CATHEDRAL SERVICE.

The service at the Cathedral was conducted by the Dean, the Very Rev. R. G. S. King, and the Rev. L. Crooks.

The preacher was Rev. C. I. Peacocke, rector of St. Mark's, Dundela, Belfast, who took as his text Joshua iv., 6—"What mean ye by these stones."

He said when after many years of wandering in the wilderness and desert the children of Israel under God and their great leader Joshua came out of darkness into light and viewed the promised land, they had to cross the River Jordan. Their way was made plain for them, and Joshua commanded 12 great stones to be placed as a memorial of their deliverance so that when their children asked the meaning of those stones they would be told of how God had delivered them and brought them to the promised land.

They could perhaps imagine that in the years that came after the children of Israel made a yearly pilgrimage to that memorial which stood for so much that they now enjoyed, and there they held a great service of thanksgiving to God.

That day they were in a like position. They met in that ancient Cathedral within the hallowed walls of their famous city memorials for all time of the end of wandering in the desert of superstition and error, memorials of heroic deeds in defence of the faith, a reminder of sufferings to be borne by those who would be true, and, finally, a thanksgiving for deliverance, and for the beginning of a new era. Might then the keynote of their celebrations be thanksgiving and renewal of their vows in that their yearly pilgrimage.

THE CONDITIONS IN 1688.

They would remember that by 1688 under the policy of Richard Talbot, Lord Tyrconnell, most of the high offices in State and borough were filled by Roman Catholics, and the Protestants fearing a general massacre had fled overseas or into the towns. In Derry there was great alarm when it was learned that a regiment of 1,200 Roman Catholics, under the Roman Catholic Earl of Antrim, was on its way from Coleraine to occupy the city. When the advance guard arrived the Council were still debating what to do, but 13 Apprentices made up their mind for them by shutting the Gates in the face of King James' officers. Lord Antrim, not wishing to take upon himself the responsibility of attacking, withdrew.

Tyrconnell was furious at Derry's action, but learning of the arrival of King William in England, thought it better to adopt a more conciliatory tone, and sent Lord Mountjoy—a Protestant brave soldier—to Derry. He was received, and allowed to leave a small garrison under Robert Lundy, who took the title of Governor, and when the citizens, greatly reinforced by the neighbouring gentry, proclaimed William and Mary King and Queen he, too, professed his allegiance, but it was not very sincere, for when King James fled from England and set out for Derry he kept in continuous touch with him, and led him to believe that he and his army would meet with no resistance.

That they knew was not so. Under the enthusiasm of an aged clergyman, George Walker, and the leadership of Major Baker and Captain Murray, Derry prepared to resist. For 105 days, ridden by disease, with scarcely anything to eat except rats and horseflesh, they repelled every attack; they made sorties, and when about at their last gasp, with few survivors able to stand, the good ships Mountjoy and Phoenix sailed through the broken boom, and relieved the city on August 12, 1689, according to present-day reckoning.

VALUE OF THE PILGRIMAGE.

The value of their yearly pilgrimage to Derry was not that they might be inflamed against those who opposed them, but that in thankfulness they dedicated themselves to those ideals for which their forefathers fought and died. He would have them know that they were not to-day called upon to deeds of violence. That time, please God, was past, but they were called upon to realise that the danger to their faith was no less real. It could come from without and within. It could come from without. They had only to look at those countries which were dominated by the Roman Catholic faith to realise the danger.

But the danger might come from within. Lulled to a sense of false security Protestants might forget the foundation of their wealth of civil and religious liberty, and became careless of their religion. They might even squabble among themselves and lose their solidarity. They might confuse the issue by stressing civil liberty to the exclusion of the religious foundation. In other words the danger to their faith was increased by each one of them who failed in any one way to live up to that which they professed, which was the principles of the Reformation.

At the time of the Siege all sank their differences and pulled together; they were all at one in spirit. They did not look for uniformity between the Churches but surely, to God, they could have unity of spirit. They had their open Bible and their Churches, let them each be loyal to their own. He did not know how anyone could go through the soul-searching experience of initiation, and not be foremost in upholding his own Church and every good work, and it was only as they kept true to their faith that they would build up such walls of strength that those who were without would try to enter, and those who opposed would bother themselves in vain.

At the conclusion of the service the brethren made their customary circuit of the ancient city walls.

BELFAST BRANCH CLUBS.

FOUR SPECIALS REQUIRED.

TRAINS FROM OTHER CENTRES.

The branch clubs of the Apprentice Boys of Derry in Belfast and its immediate neighbourhood travelled to the Maiden City this morning by four special trains in order to join in the Relief celebrations.

The first train left at 5-45 o'clock and the last at 7 o'clock and all were well filled by members of the various branch clubs and their friends.

The arrangements in connection with the occasion had been well devised and, superintended by a strong committee, were carried through without the slightest hitch.

Naturally at the early hours at which the departure had been fixed there were few people abroad apart from those who had decided to participate in the visit. Nevertheless, the small number who did assemble gave their friends a very hearty send off.

From each of the following centres a special train also ran early to the Maiden City carrying hundreds of Apprentice Boys and members of other organisations in sympathy with them:—Portadown, Lurgan, Newry, Keady and Banbridge. A local special ran too from Omagh with large contingents of celebrants.

The first Belfast train was timed to arrive in Derry at 8-10 a.m., and the last at 11 a.m. The first return excursion train has been fixed to leave Derry at 5 p.m. and the last at 8-20 p.m.

UNIQUE TROPHY FOR CELTIC PARK.

THE M'ALEVEY GOLD CUP.

MOST VALUABLE IN GT. BRITAIN.

Before leaving Belfast, on one of his flying visits to the States, to watch the World's Championship bout between "Homicide Henry Armstrong and Louie Ambers, Mr. Hugh M'Alevey discussed with the directors of the Celtic track the question of presenting a gold cup for competition, to be competed for on similar lines to the Trigo Cup—an open race of an International nature, calculated to attract the best dogs on the Eire and British tracks, and with prize money equivalent in value to the greyhound classic events.

Mr. M'Alevey's proposition took concrete form this week when a cablegram arrived from New York, confirming his offer and intimating that he had placed an order for a trophy, unique in design and of value commensurate with the status of the competition.

The M'Alevey Gold Cup will be the largest and most valuable yet competed for on any greyhound track in the British Isles and the Celtic track will now have the distinction of being one of the three British tracks, and the first in Ireland to feature a Gold Cup competition—the Clapton Scurrys and Wembley Gold Cup being the other two. As is the case with the Trigo Cup, the M'Alevey Gold Cup will be a perpetual challenge trophy and carries with it a handsome replica also of solid gold.

WHILE JOE LOUIS IS "RESTING."

FARR MAY MEET BAER.

RETURN MATCH OVERTURE

COMES FROM WELSHMAN'S CAMP.

TORONTO, Saturday.—Tommy Farr's next fight in America may be a return match with Max Baer, who beat the Welshman on points in a 15-rounds bout at Madison Square Garden last March.

Mr. Joe Gould, Farr's manager, told the Press Association, "Whether Farr meets Baer depends entirely on Baer. He doesn't want to fight anyone but Joe Louis, but Louis won't box again this year. If Baer can get it through his head that he won't have a fight until next June if he waits for Louis, he'll probably be glad to sign for another fight with Farr."

Farr and his manager have been in Toronto trying to settle details for a fight with Maurice Strickland, the New Zealand heavyweight, but no arrangements have been completed.—Press Association Foreign Special.

BOXING NEWS IN BRIEF.

Small Montana, the Filipino, easily defeated Katsumi Morioka, the Japanese-Canadian, on points over 12 rounds in New York in what was described as "the first of the eliminating contests for the world flyweight title vacated by Benny Lynch, of Glasgow."

Tommy Osborne, of Montreal, who held the British Empire amateur heavyweight title until he turned professional, won on a technical knock-out in the second round in Montreal against Eddie Coderre, a French-Canadian heavyweight from Providence, R.I.

Ginger Foran, the Liverpool featherweight, is matched to meet "Baby Face" Joey Fontana, of New York, on August 18.

Walter Neusel, the German heavyweight, will fight Heinz Lazak, the light-heavyweight champion of Europe, in Vienna on September 18.—Press Association Foreign Specials.

RACEHORSE AND HIS GOAT PAL

TAKE EXERCISE TOGETHER

ON THE SANDS AT SEAFORD.

Holiday-makers at Seaford must think sometimes that they have come to an "Alice in Wonderland" seaside when they see a racehorse and an elderly goat taking gentle exercise together on the sands.

It is just another of those unaccountable friendships that spring up between animals of different species, and "Brave Mic," the horse, and "Billy" are inseparable. A day or two ago they even had to take "Billy" into the paddock at Kempton Park with the horse. "Billy" and "Mic" have been friends now for about six months.

Mrs. David Dale, the wife of "Mic's" trainer, said: "There is an awful to-do if 'Billy' is not in 'Mic's' travelling box.

"When 'Mic' goes for real exercise over the downs 'Billy' stays at home, but when it is just a walk on the sands to stretch his legs you will always find 'Billy' trotting alongside him.

"BILLY" NOT VERY NICE TO KNOW.

"'Billy' is not very nice to know—he butts most painfully, and he dislikes children—but he and 'Mic' are the best of friends. They eat and sleep together."

Some time ago Mr. Dale had another horse which chose a goat as its companion, and Miss Dorothy Paget's filly, Osway a few years ago was accompanied to Nottingham by a white goat.

Some horses prefer a friend of their own kind. One of the most famous friendships on record is that of the wonder horse, Brown Jack, and Mail Fist. As a pace-maker Mail Fist is entitled to some at least of the glory which Jack earned in his long racing career.

RECTOR AND PARISH.

CHARGE OF WIFE BEATING.

REFUSES TO WITHDRAW IT.

Unrepentant about the comments he made in his parish magazine that the people of Wednesbury (Staffs) are illiterate and that wife-beating is common in the town, the Rev. Geoffrey Ingle Soden, 35-year-old rector of St. James's Church, issued a statement yesterday in which he declares that he is "sticking to his guns."

"The Council's action in solemnly debating the contents of a parish magazine is calculated to make them the laughing stock of the country," he says. "I adhere to my statement as to the general level of knowledge and intelligence in the town. My criticism as to the treatment of women cannot, in the nature of things, be either proved or disproved, but I maintain that the Victorian attitude to women still persists in a number of homes here. If the unwelcome publicity to which I have been subjected has done anything to help some of the ill-treated wives I know I shall not regret it.

"CRITICISM WELL FOUNDED."

"I maintain that all my criticisms are well-founded, and I stick to my guns . . . . If Wednesbury has suffered by the wide publicity which it has received no one regrets that more than I. What I wrote was intended for the 300 readers of the parish magazine.

"The Council's suggestion that it would be an act of grace on my part to admit what I have written was not fully considered comes rather late in the day, particularly as they have been guilty of the thoroughly mean and un-English action of trying to invoke my Bishop to take disciplinary action against me for exercising the right of free speech, which is every Englishman's birthright.

"It is because I long patiently to see Jerusalem built among these dark, satanic mills that I feel bound in conscience to speak critically of existing conditions."

BOWLING.

CASTLETON DRAW AT HOME.

On Friday evening at Alexandra Park in the N.I.B.A. competition, Musgrave made a draw with Castleton at 66 all.

In Dublin, Leinster, on the home green, beat Blackrock by 64-49 in the Cooper Cup competition.

FORMER LINFIELD GOALKEEPER.

Motherwell have signed William Frame, the former Linfield goalkeeper. He did well in a trial game. Frame played in the reserve team to-day against Queen of the South at Dumfries.

ITALY'S RACIAL POLICY.

ROME, Friday.—General Starace, secretary of the Fascist Party, has instructed the Italian Institute for Popular Culture to study the fundamental points of "Italy's racial policy, wires the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" correspondent.

They include the Jewish problem in Italy and elsewhere, intensification of maternal and child welfare, the necessity for preventing a mixture of races in Italy's African possessions, and the training of Italian youth to be race conscious.

Milan newspapers call the attention of the authorities to a small colony of Chinese hawkers in that city, and allege that they have been contracting unions with Italian women. They demand that immediate steps be taken to prevent the birth of any more Italo-Chinese children.

GERMAN LABOUR DIFFICULTIES.

SHORTAGE ACUTE.

BUREAU MAKES APPEAL

TO MARRIED WOMEN.

The acute shortage of both male and female labour throughout Germany, owing to the conscription of workers for the building of fortifications and strategic roads and the vast programme of public works, has prompted the official Labour Bureau to issue a Press manifesto.

This statement points out that the shortage is particularly severe in the agricultural, building, and metal working industries, and that women workers are badly needed as typists and domestic employes.

Married women, the statement concludes, will be welcomed in these capacities in cases where their own domestic duties are not all-absorbing. This is in direct contradiction of the Nazi principle that woman's place is the home.

HIGHER PAY DEMAND.

Labour difficulties are having repercussions in industry, the catering world, and private households. Feeling their positions secure, workers are demanding higher wages.

Under the Nazi regulations governing rates of pay concurrence in these demands is illegal, as are the demands themselves. They are, however, being freely granted in the guise of "bonuses for exceptional achievement" and the like (wires the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" Berlin correspondent).

Cafe proprietors are having difficulty with refractory staffs. Waiters know that it is practically impossible to replace them should they be dismissed, and the same is true of domestic servants, who have hitherto been plentiful. The labour shortage is made even more acute by the harvest, which is making heavy demands upon the supply of workers.

INTEREST WELL MAINTAINED.

Interest has been well maintained in the Summer League, and with only four match periods left to complete the competion, the championship would appear to rest between the top three teams.

R.U.C. surmounted a stiff hurdle in this round, beating C.I.Y.M.S. by 10 points. Clandeboye had a walk-over, as Argonauts were unable to raise a team. Bessbrook and East Belfast "B" collected full points at the expense of Bangor and Poyntzpass respectively. East Belfast "A" and Springfield had a bye in this round.

The Executive Committee have everything well in hand for the open meeting at Newtownards on Saturday next, and as a record entry is anticipated, competitors would be well advised to arrive at the range as early as possible. Arrangements have been made for refreshments, also for the sale of ammunition.

THE U.S.A. NEW DEAL

PRESIDENT STARTS FRESH CAMPAIGN.

VAST EXPENDITURE.

CREATING BETTER BUSINESS.

President Roosevelt has returned to Washington determined to make an effort to salvage his scheme for refashioning the Democratic Party along New Deal lines, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" New York correspondent.

Reports submitted to the President on the progress of his 1938 relief recovery programme showed that, while the Federal money had begun to flow into business and consumption channels in increased volume through various agencies, the big pouring out of money was yet to come. The improved tone of business is probably in large measure due to these vast Government expenditures. The largest of these, controlled by the Works Progress Administration, is now spending in relief and wages, which are immediately transferred into consumption demand, more than £1,000,000 daily.

WELCOME REPORTS.

The Works Progress Administration has £300,000,000 to spend in eight months, and its disbursements are regarded as the most important boost that business has so far received. From various parts of the country news items appearing in the newspapers may be quoted as an indication of improved conditions. Deposits in 5,248 National Banks as on June 30 totalled £5,600,000,000, this being the largest figure since December, 1936.

FOUR NEW STEAMERS.

The United States Maritime Commission has awarded the Bethlehem Steel Corporation a contract to build four cargo vessels for the Mediterranean and Black Sea trade, at a price of £500,000 each. One copper mine in Nevada, employing 600 men, has resumed operations after being shut down for two months, and other mines are expected to re-open shortly.

GREAT STRUGGLE IN ECLIPSE STAKES

ON THE CELTIC GROUND.

FINNSIDE AS THE VICTOR.

The Eclipse Stakes provided a great finish at Celtic last night, with Finnside, Edenasharra Cutlet and Cluggin Cross finishing bang on top of each other after a great race.

Finnside ran a game race to win, but was a bit lucky in doing so, having a clear run from the trap, whereas Cluggin Cross was badly hampered on the first turn and was left with six or seven lengths to make up.

A grand stayer, Cluggin Cross set about his task in resolute fashion, and with Finnside and Edenasharra Cutlet fighting for the lead in the home straight the Southerner almost got up to beat them both.

The winner's time was moderate enough, though, as a comparison with a recent trial gallop of 30.41secs. goes to prove.

Rebel Mars, a winner in 21.11secs. over the sprint distance on Monday night, clocked 30.54secs when beating Slemish Smasher in the Harmonicon Stakes.

ALL-BLACKS WIN RUGBY TEST.

CAMPBELL'S SPEED BID FAILS.

ONLY BY THREE M.P.H.

ADVERSE CONDITIONS.

RAINING HARD: VISIBILITY BAD.

GENEVA, Saturday. — Sir Malcolm Campbell failed by just over three miles per hour to beat his world water speed record of 129.50 miles an hour in Bluebird on the lake here early this morning.

Sir Malcolm covered the measured mile in the outward direction at an average speed of 128.57 miles an hour, which gave hopes of a possible record, but his run back was only 124.13 miles an hour, giving him an average of 126.30 miles an hour.

Although the fearless British pilot ascribed his failure to the fact that the engine was not pulling well, he had [illegible] conditions under which to make his attempt.

The water was smooth, it was true, but it was raining heavily and the visibility was bad.

Further, there was a lot of floating timber and other flotsam on the lake.

Such conditions made Sir Malcolm wonder whether it was worth taking Bluebird out, but despite them and that it was the thirteenth day of the month he decided to do so in view of the fact that the engines now seemed to be in such fine trim.

Sir Malcolm might well have left to-day, the thirteenth, alone, seeing that he sat down thirteen to lunch yesterday when being entertained by the well-known British golfer, Captain Francis Francis, especially as there was always the chance of his hitting some of the floating matter which so tragically put an end to the career of Sir Henry Segrave. He nearly did hit something, but it was a bird.

The British pilot indicated that he would probably make another attempt to-morrow. It is his view that perhaps the altitude of the lake may be having some effect on the speed of the boat and his present inability to break the record.

Competent critics, however, are of the opinion that he will beat his record if only he gets the right conditions, and one expert who has watched his attempts at Geneva thinks that the boat will average some 135 miles an hour.—Press Association Foreign Special.

EQUIPOISE DEAD.

HOLDER OF WORLD RECORD.

WON £67,720 IN STAKE MONEY.

LEXINGTON (Kentucky), Saturday.—Mr. C. V. Whitney's Equipoise, one of the greatest racehorses of all time, has died at his owner's farm near here.

Equipoise was second only to Sun Beau as the biggest money winner in Turf history. He won 29 races and was placed in 14 others, winning 338,610 dollars (£67,720). Sun Beau earned 376,744 dollars (£75,350).

Equipoise held the official world record for the mile, which he ran in 1min. 34 2-5 secs. at Arlington Park on June 30, 1932, but this time has been beaten by three horses running in England, in each case over the Brighton course. They were Kepplestone in 1925, and Spionetta and Hermos, who dead-heated in 1927, each covering the distance in 1min. 32 4-5secs. As there is no official timing of races in England this time was not recognised as a world record.

GOSSIP FROM PRESS.

"THE QUEEN'S CHAPEL."

EXTENSIVE RENOVATIONS.

LONDON, Saturday.

When Queen Mary returns to town after the summer holiday she will find her chapel within the precincts of Marlborough House once more available to her for worship. Usually known as "the Queen's Chapel," it was closed early this year to undergo extensive renovation. It is expected that the reopening of the chapel will be marked by an appropriate service attended by Queen Mary and other members of the Royal Family. During the course of three centuries the beauties of the roof have been obscured by repeated coats of paint. In the present scheme all this has been removed and the woodwork treated in ivory and cream as Inigo Jones, the architect, originally rendered it. The organ was presented to the chapel by William IV. Built originally for the Private Chapel in Buckingham Palace about 1760, it was used there for upwards of a century, but was eventually transferred to the Marlborough House Chapel. So well preserved are portions of the original instrument that some are being incorporated in the new organ which is being installed.—Noel Thompson, in the "Daily Sketch."

LEWES DOWNS SEARCHED.

Lewes Downs were searched yesterday for prisoners escaped from Lewes. From earliest times Lewes has been a place of importance. In early days the mouth of the Ouse was a wide estuary, narrowing as it approached Lewes, where all travellers approaching from east to west, or vice versa, had to cross. Probably that Roman road starting from Newhaven passed through the town. In the time of Athelstan there were two Mints there. The artificial mound on which the keep of the Castle stands is believed to have been thrown up by Romans and the site was certainly occupied by a fortress in Saxon times. At the division of spoils, which followed the Battle of Hastings, Lewes and many other fine baronies, formerly the personal property of Harold, fell to the share of Earl William De Warenne, husband of Conqueror's daughter, Gundrada. The Battle of Lewes in which Henry III. was defeated by the Barons, led by Simon de Montfort, one of the most famous in history.—"News-Chronicle."

VICAR KILLED ON RAILWAY.

The body of Rev. Edward [illegible] Cruttwell, Vicar of Radlett, Herts, has been found on the Southern Railway between Byfleet and West Weybridge.

He was travelling to the Isle of Wight with his wife who suddenly missed him from the compartment.

It is believed that he fell out of the carriage and was struck by another train.

Veils and Mittens.

Other charming "revivals" take the form of quite bewitching veils, which drop from the front of the hat. They are decorated with just one or two spangles which give sparkle to the eyes.

Or, maybe, they also have "patches" of black velvet which appear to decorate the cheek instead of the veil.

For evening there are long black lace gloves which cling to the arm to just above the elbow where they open out like a flower calyx. Black net mittens, also very long, have flared edges made of stiffened net.

In the Shell.

Serving food "in the shell" is an attractive idea. For instance, orange salad consisting of chopped oranges, chopped walnuts and mint, flavoured with celery, salt and a little mayonnaise sauce is very good served in the scooped out orange shells and decorated with sprigs of parsley.

So, too, are tomato "shells," filled with minced sardines, hard-boiled eggs, well-seasoned and moistened with tomato juice. Egg plant, skinned, the centre scooped out and chopped with mushrooms and pimentos, put back into the shell and then baked is another excellent dish.

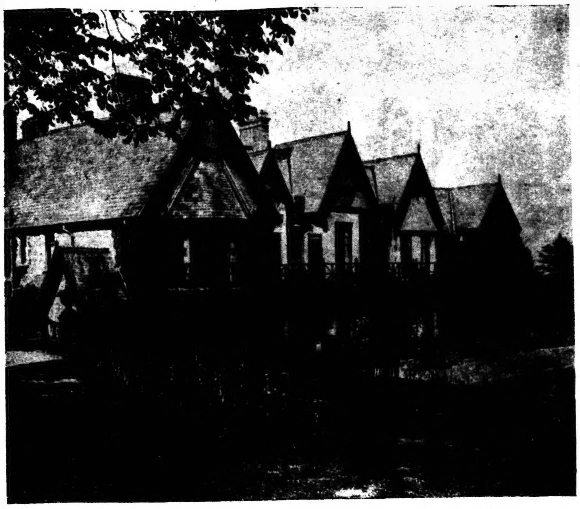
A STATELY ULSTER HOME



Cairndhu, Sir Thomas and Lady Dixon's residence, near Larne.

LONDON DIARY of an ULSTERWOMAN

THERE are few women of her age who have anything like the energy of Queen Mary. At 70 she seems able to do much more than many who are considerably younger, and she has the rare gift of being able to convey the impression that what she is doing at the moment is the thing she most wants to do. When she went to Cambridge to open the new wing of Newnham College she had a task which pleased her immensely, for the higher education of women is something in which she has always believed.

The new wing at Newham has been designed by a woman, Miss Elizabeth Scott, who ten years ago won the Stratford competition for the best design of the Shakespeare Memorial Theatre there. Miss Scott is one of the few women who have achieved outstanding success as a practising architect. Few people know that she designed a cabmen's shelter and coffee stall at Hampstead.

Branches of the Personal Service League were, I know, started in various towns throughout Ulster some years ago, and largely due to the efforts of the Duchess of Abercorn and Lady Londonderry met with a good measure of success. Recently, however, it would seem that there has grown up a belief that the work of the League to provide clothing for the unemployed during the winter months is not as necesary as it was. This belief is quite unjustified, and I hear that intensified efforts are to be made to ensure the continued success of the League. Queen Mary is a patroness, and has given it much practical help. The Queen, too, constantly sends gifts made by the staffs of the Royal palaces.

When the Duchess of Gloucester left London this week by air for Kenya she took with her a number of light multi-coloured printed frocks. With each frock there is a matching coat which picks up one of the tones from the prints. Some of the coats are full length. Others are three-quarters length. For evening wear the Duchess took short fur boleros.

THE Marchioness of Dufferin has left London for two weeks at Biarritz. After her holiday there she will cross to Clandeboye, where she will entertain a house party. Others who left town this week are the Marquis and Marchioness of Hamilton, who have gone to Ireland, and Priscilla Countess Annesley, who, after a very full season, has gone to France.

I wonder how many people who read this week that the Dyers' Association suggest that stockings may have to be dyed in not more than 12 shades paused to think of the vast changes that have come over women's stockings since the end of the war?

THERE are to-day 600 shades in which a woman may buy silk stockings, and she has come to regard this as a necessity rather than as a luxury.

At one time a woman had a choice of two colours, black or brown, and later there came in, rather daringly, the flesh-coloured stocking. Yet to-day there are all sorts of exotic shades and names to be had, and whether she be rich or whether she be poor the woman of to-day feels that she must have them. As stockings don't last many of us a long time it is quite on the cards that she may in the course of a year wear a pair of each of the 600 shades.

One thing to be said in favour of the suggested reduction of the number of shades to be had is that it will enable those who ladder one stocking only more easily to match the good one.

A North of Ireland man who at one time played a prominent part in the cultural life of the Province has written a book which will be of help to all who visit London, and like to know where serious pleasures may be had. He is George Buchanan, and his book is called "Serious Pleasures." In it he takes visitors round London University, the museums, art galleries, and libraries.

Room for a Daughter

By MADGE AMES.

A bedroom for your small daughter who is just approaching her 'teens is but her due, even though you may have but little money with which to buy the equipment, but it is one which should be approached with much commonsense and understanding where the child herself is concerned.

As to the colour scheme, no doubt the little girl will have some kind of preference of her own, and may have her own ideas as to the relative charms of flowered wallpaper and plain muslin or linen curtains, or of painted (and, therefore, washable) walls with chintz curtains, and woodwork painted to match one of the colours in the chintz, or in a tone deeper than the walls.

Gaily Painted Furniture.

In any event, painted furniture is generally liked by the child because it is so much prettier than dark wood, and by the parent because it is easily kept clean. It is usually quite cheap, and in some instances is an excellent method of disguising odd pieces of furniture.

It is a good plan to arrange the room as a kind of a bed-sitting room—an undertaking which is very much easier nowadays, when most people relegate the one-time bedroom washing arrangements to the bathroom.

A divan bed may be covered with a pretty quilt to match the curtains, and clothes may be kept in a painted cupboard. But it is as well to see that the cupboard is fairly large, so that as the child's clothes "grow"—in length as well as number—the cupboard does not become useless for its purpose.

Easily Mutilated.

Bookshelves, too, should be chosen to allow of expansion. There are several kinds of shelves which are made so that additional ones can be bought at will. Or in the event of built-in shelves the ones which are not needed yet for books may be used for the storing of toys which will later be discarded.

Several comfortable chairs should be added to the furniture, so that your daughter may entertain her friends in her own room, and some kind of writing desk is necessary with a really good, well-placed reading lamp, so that she may do her home-work without any distractions.

A gas or electric fire, surrounded by a small guard, completes the necessities, though other fitments may be added according to your own child's hobbies and needs.

"WAR" ON SPIES IN FRANCE.

MINISTER'S SCHEME TO CONTROL FOREIGNERS.

WATCH ON UNDESIRABLES.

Counter-espionage services in France are to be strengthened. This is shown in a note circulated by M. Sarraut, Minister of the Interior, to the mobile police, frontier guards, and all concerned in the control of foreigners entering France either for temporary or permanent residence. The note (states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" Paris correspondent) classifies the new scheme as follows:—

Reinforcements of the mobile police by the creation of four new brigades, whose headquarters will be at Angers, Annecy, Nice, and Pau. No extra precautions are considered necessary at places of entry for British, American or Belgian visitors.

Strengthening of the special frontier police by the appointment of 150 additional inspectors provided with light motor-cars and motor-cycles to prevent undesirables from entering France.

Strengthening of counter-espionage services in the national interest, particularly the police of the air and control of secret wireless transmitting stations.

Augmentation of the administrative police dealing with foreigners whose political and social activities on French soil are liable to disturb public order.

It is pointed out that over 3,000,000 foreigners live in French territory, and the Government has misgivings about a large number of them.

The new arrangements have been made necessary by the mass influx of foreigners seeking asylum, but they in [illegible] hamper tourist traffic or inconvenience desirable foreign residents. Their object is to sort out the desirables from the undesirables.

LADY OXFORD AND ASQUITH IN HER SATURDAY COMMENTARY DISCUSSES—

Letter-writing, The Weather ... and Tears

"The memory of August 4 made me burst into tears."

DOUBTLESS you have read in the newspapers the whereabouts of well-known persons and politicians on their holidays. But if they are wise they will announce "Letters will not be forwarded."

I am not of sufficient importance to make such an announcement, yet I personally suffer sufficiently from silly letters of the non-stop kind to know what the post must bring every morning and evening to tired and prominent people.

Letter-writing is a great and, perhaps, forgotten art, and we all enjoy reading the letters which were published in the past. But in those days there were no broadcasting, no telephone, and little means of communication.

We should know nothing of the political intrigues and matters of importance were it not for the wonderful diaries, memoirs, and correspondence of famous foreigners, and even famous gossip writers in Britain.

Who is there that has not enjoyed reading Greville, Creevy, Harvey, Pepys, and Queen Victoria's "Leaves from the Journey of our Life in the Highlands." This book not only gave enormous pleasure at the time of its publication, but, speaking for myself, I found it a book of entrancing interest and constant diversion.

Nor is there any better holiday literature to read to-day than Queen Victoria's letters. She inspired all the most distinguished men to whom she wrote to answer her letters with judgment, humour and discretion, and I am not certain whether the Queen's letters were better expressed than those with whom she corresponded.

"I Don't Like Long Letters"

EVERY day I live I feel more admiration for Queen Victoria and the Prince Consort. But neither Kings, Queens, nor Commoners have the time, the talent, or the inclination to write letters or memoirs such as those I have mentioned to-day. They are only too glad to escape from the telephone, the public, and the post.

If letters are short and the signatures typed (which they seldom are) I read them; if they are long, I put them in an envelope and write on it "To be read later, and tear up unless answer required," and give them to my secretary.

"Yours to hand. Note the contents," would not take me long to write, but this would not be a gracious reply to any earnest correspondent.

I remembered when I married and my husband was in the Home Office, his saying: "Every letter should be answered, even if they are written by lunatics." This was wise advice which I have never forgotten.

Why The Scots Prosper

THIS has been an exacting season for all of us, and I never remember such perfidious weather—a boiling spring, which killed half the flowers and all the fruit, followed by frost and gales. The truth is there is a great deal of good weather in these islands if you could only be certain when and where you can find it. Nevertheless, it is thanks to our climate that we have prospered as a nation.

In most countries it is either too hot for the peasant to work hard in summer, or too cold for anyone to work in winter, and I have come to the conclusion that the reason my race has prospered is because they have had to coax corn, fruit, and flowers to grow, and, if farmers fail to make profits, they emigrate.

Wherever I have been in foreign countries, there is always a Scotsman at the head of the various industries. Which is remarkable since the Scots—whether from the Highlands or the Border—have an unrivalled sentiment for their homes.

I had not been in a train for nearly two years till I came to North Berwick this month. I remember one of Queen Victoria's Ladies-in-Waiting telling me that the Queen had never seen a railway ticket. This was not because she travelled by coach, car or aeroplane, but because all her movements were arranged for her—a privilege which I confess I envy.

I always go by motor when I leave London for the country, and when I spent my last autumn in France, Austria, and Roumania, I went by air. I shocked the conductor of the Scots express, which brought me to Drem last week, by saying I found his train very shaky, and as slow as an errand boy.

I remained in London a week longer than I wanted, as I promised the B.B.C. that I would repeat what I did a year ago, for their wonderful "War Album," when they asked me to describe what happened in 10 Downing Street on the night of the Declaration of War.

August 4, 1914, has faded from the memories of most people, as they are either too old, or too young, to remember it. But for me it happened yesterday, and nothing but my admiration for Sir John Reith, the B.B.C., and Mr. Charles Brewer (and his collaborators) would have made me remain an hour longer in London to broadcast about such an agonising occasion.

I am ashamed to confess that I burst into tears the first time I rehearsed it, and had to prick my thigh with my hat-pin last week for fear of doing the same thing again.

Most people get more self-control as they grow older; at least they should, as doubtless the young are more impressionable. But I have been young for a very long time, and no one who was not actually living in 10 Downing Street during those fateful days will ever know what my husband and I suffered.

Everyone Suffered Alike

YOU may say everyone suffered alike. I merely mean the personal suffering of a Liberal Prime Minister when he realised it was his duty to rouse a great Empire to present a united front, not to fight the Germans (against whom we had no particular cause of quarrel) but for what his country will always fight for—honour and freedom.

The Tories at that time, whether rightly or wrongly, were looked upon as Jingoes—an expression of which I am too uneducated to know the origin. The Liberals loathed militarism, and were called "Little Englanders."

Such was the loathing of war by Liberals that I doubt, if a Tory Prime Minister had been in power in 1914, he could have got every Dominion and Colony to fight for us. The position has been reversed to-day, and the Tories have stolen our thunder.

Every party has an equal dislike of war, but the perpetual pin-pricking of the Prime Minister has not improved the prospects of Liberalism in the country. The weekly debates this session upon foreign affairs have been as monotonous as merry-go-rounds, and far less amusing.

M.P.'s And Foreign Affairs

I MAY be old-fashioned and unable to keep up with the changes of the day, but I shall always maintain that foreign affairs should be kept out of our Parliamentary discussions, and it is a dangerous innovation to make them a dart-board for the average elector to aim at.

If there is one thing I am more certain of than another, it is that inexperienced men, of whatever Party, should not be asked to vote upon foreign affairs, about which they only know what they read in the newspapers.

The state of Europe and the talk of war make it difficult for any Prime Minister, or Foreign Secretary, to steer his Empire into the path of peace, and whoever occupied 10 Downing Street would be rightly cursed, if he had not made every effort before we were involved in the disastrous folly of another war.

If, however, these efforts should fail, we will unite as one man to defend, as we did in 1914, our country and our freedom.

DR. IRVINE REVISITS BELFAST.

PICTURE HE BOUGHT.

"BY CHAP CALLED MILLET."

IS NOW INSURED FOR £2,000.

Dr. Alexander Irvine, author of "My Lady of the Chimney Corner," arrived in Belfast to-day on a short visit to Ulster to see his sister, Mrs. Mary Scott, Pogue's Entry, Antrim, who is caretaker of the house where the famous story originated and which is now in the hands of trustees as a memorial.

Dr. Irvine had intended to occupy the pulpits of Bloomfield Presbyterian Church and Fitzroy Avenue Presbyterian Church, Belfast, but unfortunately his health will not permit of public engagements.

He was met by Mr. J. Herbert Ireland, secretary of the Belfast Y.M.C.A., a very old friend.

Dr. Irvine has presented to Pogue's Entry Museum a valuable painting, "Maternity," by the eminent French artist, Jean Francois Millet, which he bought for a few dollars in New York some years ago under somewhat amusing circumstances.

Dr. Irvine strolled into the auction room just as the auctioneer held up the painting saying "Here's a picture of an old woman by a chap called Millet" (pronouncing the name by its English spelling). He at once realised the importance of the picture and bid a few dollars. There was no advance and the hammer fell, leaving him owner of an art treasure which is now insured for £2,000 and is said to be the only example of Millet's work at present in Ireland.

VISIT OF MR. A. E. BOOTH.

"The past, the present, and the future," will be the subject of an address which Mr. A. E. Booth, of Pasedena, California, will give in the Y.M.C.A. Hall, Donegall Square East, Belfast, on Sunday at 8 p.m.

Mr. Booth is an evangelist and a teacher, and his subject will be illustrated by a large coloured chart giving a bird's eye view of the history of the world from the beginning to the end.

THE LAND ANNUITIES.

THE clear and comprehensive statement on Land Purchase annuities made by Sir Basil Brooke, Minister of Agriculture for Northern Ireland, at the Relief of Derry celebrations held at Enniskillen on Friday came very appropriately at the present time. There has been considerable misunderstanding in connection with these annuities, and rashness in criticising the Government regarding the present position. Under the provisions of the Government of Ireland Act, 1920, which has since that date been in operation in the Six Counties, the Government of the Province was specifically enabled to retain the Land Purchase annuities then being collected in its area, amounting to about £450,000 per annum, for revenue purposes. During the past seventeen years it has been the practice to put aside £91,000 of this amount each year to form a sinking fund against the day when the annual payments will come to an end. Thus the net amount available as revenue is £355,000 per annum after making all necessary deductions. In addition to this, there are the annuities payable in connection with purchases of holdings under the 1925 Land Act, amounting to some £275,000 a year. This sum is credited to the British Government and used by it to meet the interest and sinking fund on the Land Stock. It must be remembered that the effective working of the purchase system, which will in course of time make the farmers the absolute owners of their holdings, was due to the financial standing and credit of Britain. It has given them an advantage not possessed by fellow-agriculturists across the Channel. The average annuity payment made by Northern Ireland farmers is about 7s 6d per acre, whereas the farmer in England and Wales pays approximately 28s — nearly four times as much.

The Government of what was then called the Free State made a new bargain with the British Government as a result of which the former became liable for the dividends payable to members of the public who held Irish Land Stock issued before 1922. As regards the raising of money to buy out landlords subsequent to that date, the Government of the Irish Free State made its own arrangements. Everyone must remember that when Mr. De Valera came into office in 1931 he repudiated the agreement making his Government liable for Land Purchase charges incurred prior to 1922. It will also be recalled that the British Government replied to this action by imposing substantial tariffs which mainly affected Free State agricultural produce exported to Great Britain and Ulster. The Southern farmers were hard hit by these measures, and to compensate them the De Valera Government reduced the annuities which they had to pay by one-half, a step which, as Sir Basil Brooke said, once taken could not be recalled. By the agreement made in the spring of this year the British Government, in return for what may be called a "token" payment, released the Eire Government from liability for the Land Purchase annuities, and the tariffs which were penalising agricultural exports from the South of Ireland were removed. It is now urged by some that the annuities payable by Northern Ireland farmers should be reduced so as to put them on a level with competitors in Eire. It is forgotten, however, that the farmer in the North enjoys other important advantages not shared by the South. The Government has derated all agricultural land at a cost of £880,000 annually, while milk subsidies and land improvement grants come to £50,000 a year on the average. Moreover, beef, lime, oats, and wheat subsidies of which the Ulster farmer gets the advantage amount in all to £260,000 a year. The total of the various grants and subsidies comes to nearly £1,200,000 a year, averaging 10s per acre against the average annuity payment of 7s 6d per acre. If, as has been suggested, the farmers were to forego the grants and subsidies on condition of the abolition of the land annuities, they would be decidedly the losers by the bargain. If before putting forward demands of this nature the question had been studied carefully in all its aspects the need for caution would have been realised.

Life Fifty Years Ahead

NEXT week "The Telegraph" will publish a striking new series of articles on the absorbing topic of what the future will bring.

Some of the best known writers of the day make considered forecasts of life as it will be found by our children fifty years hence.

Contributors to the series include SHAW DESMOND, well-known religious author; HARRY HARPER, authority on aviation; JOAN KENNEDY, popular novelist; ALFRED DENVILLE, M.P., and Dr. LEONARD WILLIAMS.

Home life, travel, religion, entertainment, and health in 1988 are among the peeps at the future these articles will bring

On this page on Monday Professor A. M. Low, scientist and inventor, introduces the series.

Even Speed Kings Can be Scared

By
CAPT. GEO. E. T. EYSTON
famous racing motorist.

TRUE COURAGE is a blend of fear and the determination to overcome it. I can honestly say that I have been afraid on racing tracks, and that it is only an ingrained love of the game that has made me take risks. Not that the racing man is a fool who ignores safety; on the contrary, he realises the need for considering safety first, and knows that motoring suffers when needless risks are taken.

I think I am safe in confessing that my worst moment occurred on the Monthlery Track during my attempt at making a world's record of a hundred miles an hour for a full hour in an M.G. Baby. Before I started I realised that this would be a tough job for a small car, but I did not in my wildest imagination dream of how my task would end.

PUNCTUALLY at one p.m. without waiting for lunch, I started round the track. I started at about 105 m.p.h., the little motor turning over at 6,400 r.p.m. In the middle of the straight, opposite the timekeeper's box, stood "uncle," who was to signal me with a flag and show the lap speed I was putting up. This was to ensure that I retained a safety margin over the 100 m.p.h., so that the average would be such as to work off my first lap from a standing start.

I watched this flag and saw that I was well within the safety margin, and also noticed that the mechanics were seated about the track regarding the car casually, as though the whole attempt was something that must succeed as a matter of course. Naturally, this cheered me, and made me forget any risks, save those which every racing motorist must always consider.

The hour was nearly up, and I saw that I had broken the 50 kilometres, 50 miles, and 100 kilometres record on my way. I was not absolutely certain of the exact time, but estimated that I had about ten minutes to go before the 100 miles record was mine. Anxiously I wondered—could she hold out those remaining few moments?

With five minutes to go to success I listened to the regular beat of the engine. What a magnificent little machine, I thought, and for a few seconds was lost in admiration of the car. Then, with a horrible shock I realised that the cockpit had grown insufferably warm.

As my engine started to pull violently I plunged the gear lever into neutral, hoping to get through the last lap in this way, as I believed that I had now only a short distance to go before the record was mine. I coasted, the speed dropping to eighty m.p.h., and decreasing. But as it decreased, so the flames that spouted from the carburettor grew, and began to dart through the sides of the bonnet.

In a few seconds they were through the cockpit and around the seat, so that it was obvious that I dare not make the last lap in the car. I must reduce my speed and jump for it. The heat was so terrific that I could not keep my foot on the brake pedal, so as quickly as possible I edged myself from the cockpit—no easy task, in itself, for a big man.

A PATCH of grass caught my eye and I jumped for it at sixty miles an hour. That jump I shall never forget; three times I spun round, then hit the grass with a force that knocked the breath from my body. The agony of my burns was forgotten in that horrible moment, but I clearly remember watching the gallant little M.G. bucketing round the track, as though determined to finish the record on her own.

But luck had not deserted me, for as I lay gasping to the anxious mechanics about me, I was informed that I had actually broken the hour record, my average speed being 101 m.p.h.

From a number of other thrilling experiences, I think I might pick one which occurred in a road race in which I took part as being one of the most nerve-racking I have undergone. The racing driver does not have to contend with cars coming in the opposite direction, of course, but the decision whether he can make a pass in a road race is one calling for every ounce of quick perception in him.

If he fails to pass, it means that he is either compelled to slacken speed, and consequently lose valuable ground, or else his speed is uncontrollable and an accident occurs. There is an element of risk in this procedure even with ordinary driving, so that drivers can appreciate the magnitude of the task on a racing track.

In this particular road race I had to pass a slower car on a rough switchback road. I was going all out, and it was raining heavily, while visibility was further obscured by the showers of water and grit thrown up from the car in front.

Several times I looked for an opportunity to pass, but the other driver did not give way sufficiently and I was compelled to drop back in a shower of dirt and water. Then the race marshals flagged the other man to give over to the right, and as he did so I made to pass him

THEN in a split second the other car leaped into the air —it had struck a concealed gully in the tall grass by the side of the track—crashed down on its side and travelled onwards in a sickening skid. Automatically I swung over to avoid crashing into the wreck of the other car. I missed it, but failed to miss the sloping verge which led into a deep ditch on the other side of the track.

I wrenched my car out, and she turned at right angles to the ditch, with terrific velocity still in her, causing her to spin round until she seemed to be facing all directions at once.

Her mad career ended abruptly, when, despite my efforts to keep her on the track, she swung over and crashed into the same ditch as the other car. My mechanic and I clambered out, and our astonished eyes saw the wreckage our car had caused. Behind us was a telegraph pole which had been cut clean in two when the car struck it, the exhaust pipe was as completely flattened out as though some giant pliers had squashed it into a ribbon, while the front axle was twisted out of recognition.

I had not felt the impact, so busy had I been with the wheel, but the shock of seeing what our car had survived—and what we had missed—was far greater than if I had actually been aware of the crash.

Yes, I have reason to bless the Goddess of Fortune who has so far stood me in such good stead. She is essential in most things, but without her aid the racing motorist would find his task ten thousand times riskier than he does when her protecting influence hovers about him.

THRILLS!

Thoughts for the Times
by
DR. A. D. BELDEN

AN ancient Greek philosopher is said to have exhorted his pupils once with the pungent little sentence, "Sell your bed and buy a book." This is my counsel to my readers.

You have probably often enjoyed Lord Peter Wimsey, the aristocratic detective invented by Miss Dorothy Sayers. Close upon the production of her brilliant play, "The Zeal of Thine House," with its warm and powerful religious and moral tones, she has written a little book called "The Greatest Drama Ever Staged." You can pick it up at the bookstalls for sixpence. I think she herself would claim that in a deep and reverent sense this is her best thriller.

The booklet is a presentation of the great Christian dogmas concerning Christ, His Incarnation, His Death, His Resurrection, His meaning for mankind as the most exciting disclosure ever made to the human mind. It is frankly the excitement value of the Gospel that Dorothy Sayers vindicates in this brilliant little masterpiece. As such it becomes a very impressive and timely rebuke to the dullness which hangs like a pall over so many Christian pulpits, and, indeed, alas! over so many Christian minds, whether in the ministry or in the laity.

• • • •

ONE of the hardest little proverbs to appreciate is that "familiarity breeds contempt." It should not do so, if the mind really maintains its vital working, but for the mentality that droops before custom and is prepared to be inert and unimaginative in the presence of the Good, the True, and the Beautiful, the proverb can be all too correct. It is tragic in the extreme to find that the most Wonderful Story of all should suffer the irreverence of being treated with such formality as to be rendered dull and prosaic.

Once again pressing into our service the unwonted leisure of holiday times, let us test out Dorothy Sayers' challenge in regard to our own minds. Why not ponder afresh the stupendous claims that are made for the Founder of Christianity? Is the Incarnation of God in any sense an unreasonable proposition? Is it likely that if God be love He could thrust upon humanity an entirely arbitrary experience of life and not serve His own apprenticeship to it?

• • • •

MUST He not win His moral leadership over us from within the process instead of merely imposing it from without? This would seem to be the most natural necessity of the Power behind the Universe if that Power is Intelligent and Loving and Purposeful. As Robert Browning wrote so eloquently in "Bishop Blougram's Apology":—

> "This good God, what He could do,
> if He would,
> Would, if He could—then must > have done long since:
> If so, when, where, and how? some > way must be—
> Once feel about, and soon or late
> you hit
> Some sense, in which it might be,
> after all,
> Why not, 'The Way, the Truth,
> the Life!'"

If this be true, then it is the most exciting truth any man can contemplate. It means that Jesus is not simply another, even though the greatest, of the Seekers after God. He becomes definitely and thrillingly the Answer to all the seekers. It means that the truth about God is really to be known in Him and that His words are the expression of the Mind from which all other minds have come.

Here in this discovery is surely the thrill of thrills. At once this truth begins to prove itself the active architect in our lives of the whole body of truth, and the rest of the main features of the Christian creed emerge irresistibly from it.

The key to a really exciting life lies here. When once that background is perceived to one's own life and the life of all the world, then certain values, the standards of [illegible], begin to emerge, more costly than rubies and better than fine gold. Beside this kind of thrill those other thrills the world is running after appear very tawdry and transient.

The thrill of the sensational headlines, the latest murder, the gambling chance with dogs, horses, or football pools, the shilling shocker, or the sixpenny crime novel—these but reflect the degraded appetite of a world that has missed the big thing. Indeed it is infinitely pathetic how the very word "thrill" has been almost monopolised by what is morbid and even shameful in human experience.

• • • •

EVIL thrills, but the Good is supposed not to do so; disaster thrills, but good news can be taken calmly. In a world where values have become so stupidly inverted it is indeed high time that the [illegible] should take its rightful place as the supreme thriller of mankind.

Read, for example, once again at your leisure John Masefield's "Everlasting Mercy" and see how our poet-laureate, who has had his share of the other kind of thrills in his adventurous career, exerts his noblest eloquence to declare the thrilling joy that came to the mind and heart of the drunkard Saul Kane when he found Christ.

It is not for nothing that the traditional term for the truth that Christianity has to put before the world is "Gospel," the Good Spell, the Good News, News! One can see the paper boy running and crying the really sensational headlines, "THE SUPREME MYSTERY OF ALL TIME SOLVED! GOD WALKS IN UPON THE HUMAN SCENE!" How eagerly the crowd is unfolding the evening edition and finding out what He said and did in the human scene.

Uncommon Sense

JOHN BLAKE ON WORLD SPORT

WHEN Howard Hughes landed near Moscow he carried a dispatch for Alexander A. Troyanovsky, Soviet Ambassador to the United States, home on leave. The counsellor of the Soviet Embassy in Washington sent some information the Ambassador particularly wanted: clippings from American newspapers concerning the Louis-Schmeling fight and the major league "all-star" baseball game.

The Ambassador was grateful. He has many friends who will read those clippings when he gets through with them. They will undoubtedly be passed around the inner circle of diplomats until they are worn out.

Sport is an international affair. It interests persons throughout the world. And though its influence alone probably never will bring international harmony, still it will help.

It helps because it humanises. The most violent Communist-hater will have to admit that interest in the heavyweight title or the big leagues is human interest. In so far as a man is eager to follow such events, he is no different to the rest of us.

The Olympic games held in foreign lands may stir up some international bitterness, but on the whole their influence is beneficial rather than harmful. The spectators, though ever so eager to see their countrymen win, applaud a fine performance spontaneously, no matter what the race, creed, or nationality of the athlete.

If all the sport fans of the world could really get together, the world would take a long step toward international harmony; not a political step, but an emotional one, and that is sometimes even more important. If he is a sport-lover, a man is broad-minded and free from narrow chauvinism.

As lovers of sport, men and women attending the Olympics in Germany, were prepared to cheer the exploits of an American Negro. It was only as regimented members of a dictatorship that some resisted the desire.

Not long ago I witnessed a sporting event in which athletes from many nations participated. The applause always went to the best man, no matter what his nationality. If a player looked like a poor sport or a show-off he got boos and jeers, even though he was competing against foreigners. The only rule that applied was, "Let the best man win." The crowd didn't think that patriotism had anything to do with it.

Imagine a world in which that was the rule: the best man being the leader, no matter what land fostered him. To some extent that is the situation in the world of Science, and the world of Art, for our greatest artists and scientists are shared in common by the world.

It is the situation in the great world of sport; an example worth the attention of those who can see no farther than their own limitations of race or country.

You Needn't Be Afraid of Lightning

ONE of the year's peak times for thunderstorms is now with us. Are you afraid of being struck by lightning? Many people are, and very naturally; women especially are apt to be terrified of it.

The truth is, however, that contrary to the widely accepted notion, the risk of your being struck is about a million to one. I have just been discussing the whole subject of summer storms with one of the greatest experts in the country; we did so on the verandah of a hotel when one of the biggest storms of the year was tailing off; and he told me why there is little risk—as well as some surprising facts into the bargain.

Only the smallest possible fraction of the lightning flashes discharged during the fiercest storm ever reach the ground.

THIS meteorological expert, whose name is known widely, informed me that certified Government statistics exist showing that, over a period of no less than half a century during which records have been kept, deaths from stroke of lightning in the British Isles average actually one in a million of the population.

And even this small number of deaths would be avoided if people understood the simple precautions to take.

Lightning that reaches ground must go to earth, and automatically seeks a suitable conductor. Towns provide conductors on buildings and the like for the purpose; in the country the tree is the best means for the lightning. So is the human body—if upright.

So if you are caught in a thunderstorm in the open, at once lie flat on the ground and you will in an instant reduce to almost nothing the chance of being struck.

If you should be in a wood at the time, and seeking shelter, you need not necessarily avoid trees, as is the common belief, but select one of a group together, but not the tallest. Lightning always goes for the tallest tree.

Britain is wonderfully free from thunder and lightning; lake and hill districts get them most; nevertheless they have for some time been causing the authorities a good deal of worry because of a development that progress has brought.

The carrying out of the national "grid" electrical system has brought with it a serious risk as regards lightning striking the great overhead carrying lines and tall lattice-steel silver-coloured pylons that rear their heads across country nowadays—so much so that the main electrical authority has spent much time and money in research, accompanied by actual experiments, to counteract the menace.

THEY have even gone to the length of erecting a special "layout" of transmission lines, and, much in the same way as shipbuilders conduct model tests in tanks with manufactured seas and winds, have made tests with lightning of their own and protectors.

Yes, they devise lightning by discharging in a particle of a second a terrific voltage pressure on to a cable, and closely watch results.

Yet, valuable as have been their discoveries, it is a fact that with all its advances science has not thus far got to the bottom of the mystery of lightning, as any honest scientist will tell you.

The average cloud is charged with a certain amount of electricity—how is still one of Nature's secrets—and the amount of electrical charge is linked to the size of the water drops which a given cloud contains.

The thunder cloud is of the cumulus variety of the three main cloud types; that is, of course, the cloud of the shape that billows and billows up on the horizon in hot weather. The water drops in this type of cloud are far bigger than in the average thin cloud; hence the single big spots that on a close day presage a storm of rain.

Now as these cumuli clouds bank up the big water drops get jammed more and more together and become increasingly electrified until the bluish sullen mass cracks into the discharge that is lightning. And there is, by the way, only one form of lightning; so called sheet lightning is only forked lightning behind a cloud.

THUNDER is not a banging of clouds together. It is a case of Nature on the mightiest scale abhorring a vacuum. Lightning flashing across space sears and heats the air, causing an instant expansion and a vacuum, and in a millionth part of a second the surrounding air sweeps in to fill the space with the roar we speak of as thunder. Hence the lightning first and then the thunder.

But how is the whole disturbance, from piling clouds onwards, caused? That is the question.

The most up-to-date scientific opinion is that it is due to sun-action in evaporating water from the sea-margin and low-lying places of the land, followed by what may be roughly termed uneven cloud and rain-drop temperatures on a titanic scale, thus causing a congestion aloft that must smash and force itself free.

One uses that word "titanic" of set purpose. For it has been estimated that the sheer power of one flash of lightning thus wasted by Nature, the inexhaustible prodigal, is enough to drive a large ship for many miles at high speed.

Thus if man could solve the mystery of the thunderstorm, anticipate it and provide a useful "harness" for it, he would draw all the motive power he wants from the heavens, with a mighty margin over.

And he may do it yet. The work of science is to surprise for man's benefit the secrets of the elements, and much as he has yet to learn, he has nevertheless made great strides.

London Day By Day

German Rescuers Honoured.
British Trade Board Tribute

National Theatre Support.
Happy Idea in Memorials.

LONDON, Saturday.

Mr. John Masefield.

MRS. John Masefield, wife of the Poet Laureate, is one of the few living persons whose name will be immortalised in Britain's national theatre which is being founded in the name of Shakespeare, and where seats are being endowed to the memory of Marlowe, Ben Johnson, Irving, and other great figures in the history of drama.

This honour to his wife has been paid by John Masefield himself, who has endowed a seat in her name. Though not a writer herself, Mrs. Masefield has been her husband's constant collaborator in his work, and has helped him to produce many plays.

By endowing a seat in her name Mr. Masefield is not only paying her a tribute but discharging a debt.

Another name to be commemorated is that of the late Sir W. S. Gilbert, the famous playwright and author of the Gilbert and Sullivan librettos. A seat has been endowed in his name by Miss Nancy M'Intosh, who was leading lady in a number of his later plays. As yet the theatre building has only risen a few feet. Its site is opposite the Victoria and Albert Museum, South Kensington.

A German Rescue.

THE Board of Trade award of a silver plaque to the Wilhelm Gustloff for the rescue of the crew of the 2,000 ton British freighter Pegaway, which foundered on its maiden voyage, will be of immense satisfaction to the German Government.

The Nazis are very proud of this ship, which is the first of its kind in the world. It is a luxuriously appointed one-class cruising liner built by the Strength Through Joy Movement, which is allied to the one-party German trade union organisation, the Labour Front.

It was built by collections from the workers, mostly of a penny or so at a time, for the sole purpose of taking German workers on holiday cruises, and since there is no capital amortisation to meet these trips are offered at absurdly low prices.

The only regret is that Captain Lubbe, who was in charge of the boat at the time of the rescue, has since died. I met him when he came to Tilbury with his ship, which was used as a floating polling booth in the Austro-German anschluss plebiscite for Germans in England, and found him the best type of typical seaman, who would talk about anything except the part he had played in the rescue.

Heedless Mr. Shaw.

WALKING down Whitehall yesterday I saw Mr. Bernard Shaw for the first time in twenty years. He is wonderfully little changed. Perhaps his hair is whiter and his chin droops more on to his chest, but what struck me most was the firmness of his step—and his heedlessness of his surroundings.

It was raining at the time, not heavily, but sufficient to make large, wet splashes on his light summer suit. Nevertheless he chose to use his umbrella as a walking-stick, and I gather that he had no ring to keep its ribs together. The material flopped untidily with every step he took.

Pedalling Over the Alps.

SIX London cyclists are among twenty who have been selected from a long list of applicants in all parts of the country for a tour of the mountains of Switzerland and Italy. The rest of the party consists of nine cyclists from the Midlands, five from Lancashire and Yorkshire, and one from St. Albans.

Under the leadership of Nevill Whall, the assistant secretary of the Cyclists' Touring Club, they will pedal out of London in a fortnight's time. Their ride will take them over the passes of Grimsel and Furka Oberalp, and the Brunig, and the places they will visit will include Interlaken, Milan, Lugano, Como, the Lake Garda before they reach Lucerne, from which they will return by rail.

Each member of the party has been issued with special instructions, which include a ban on the use of fixed wheels, and they have been advised to provide themselves with goggles to protect them against the glare of snow and white roads. They will all use low gears, and quite a few of them have had special lightweight machines built for the tour.

The Nations Meet—At School.

THE lawns of a country mansion within easy reach of the City will shortly be used for folk-dancing and keep-fit classes for sixty Canadian schoolgirls who are coming to England to study British music, art, speech, and traditional culture.

Although the school has been organised by the Overseas Education League of Canada, English girls and girls from Continental countries have been invited. The mansion is St. Albans Court at Nonington, Kent, the new headquarters of the English Gymnastic Society. The school will be opened by the High Commissioner for India, and the ceremony will mark the completion of a scheme of which the late Mr. Rudyard Kipling was the originator.

The spirit of friendliness among the pupils is illustrated by the fact that a Hungarian student has invited six German schoolgirls to be her guests. In England scholarships have been awarded to pupils in Birmingham, Cheltenham, and Gloucester, and two Camberwell schoolgirls have been enabled to go by the Clothworkers' Company. Trips to Canterbury Cathedral and pretty Kent villages have been arranged for the girls.

Flying In India.

THE natives round [illegible] Dugari, in Central India, are using a new currency— water bottles. They had never seen a large aircraft at close quarters until the Imperial Airways flying boat landed on the lake recently.

The natives were awestruck, and when the boat had left they collected empty mineral water bottles which crew and passengers had thrown overboard as objects of great value. These are now being used in trading by the natives, the value depending on the size and shape of the bottle and the design of the labels.

The natives of Africa were equally astonished at the first of the "white birds" when the Imperial Airways began flying mail 'planes across the Continent.

One of them who had travelled a long distance through the bush to see one of the monsters at the landing ground was offered a lift by the pilot whom he had addressed as "master of the great white bird." The native was too cautious to fall for this, but said eagerly—"I would like to take some of its eggs back with me to my village."

CABIN EXPERIMENTS.

An innovation is the introduction of a restaurant deck. Here will be installed three restaurants for cabin, tourist and third-class passengers, as well as kitchens, service rooms and pantries. A of full-sized cabins, representing each class of accommodation, has been built in a workshop near the slipway for experiments with colour schemes, furnishing, lighting and ventilation system.

Unprecedented opportunities for physical exercise will be provided. There will be a gymnasium, squash rackets court, swimming pool, Turkish and electric ray baths for cabin class passengers, gymnasium and swimming pool for tourist and a third-class gymnasium.

GRACEFUL LINES.

The vessel's profile will be so different from that of the Queen Mary that experts prefer to call them companion rather than sister ships. The new liner will have only two funnels against the Queen Mary's three, and consequently even more deck space. Stays, steam pipes and rigging will be concealed under the funnel-casing. There is a niche in the centre of the bows to allow for a third anchor. Lines from bow to bridge are particularly graceful, the main deck being unbroken by a well deck.

The Queen Elizabeth's gross tonnage is expected to be over 85,000 compared with the Queen Mary's 81,235, and 10ft. longer at 1,030ft.

FLOODLIGHTING PLANS.

Dredgers are deepening the channel opposite the yard. Over £70,000 has been spent by the Clyde Trustees in widening and deepening operations. From next week the Queen Elizabeth is to be floodlit for the benefit of visitors to the Glasgow Exhibition. I understand that her maiden voyage to New York will be made at the end of May, 1940.

EXCITING SCENE OFF DONEGAL COAST.

SHARK ATTACKS BOAT

MANNED BY DOONALT CREW.

There was an exciting scene off the Donegall coast when a 35ft. long shark attacked the St. Columb, a boat manned by a Doonalt crew of six, lobster fishing between Glen Head and Rathlin O'Beirne Island in the Glen Bay on Friday.

When the shark came to the surface, about fifteen yards away, it swam straight for the boat. The skipper, Mr. J Cunnea, immediately went full speed ahead and altered his course.

It seemed as if the shark was going to ram the boat, but when ten feet away it dived, and the lash of its tail missed the boat by inches.

A member of the crew, in conversation with a "Telegraph" representative, on coming ashore, said that if the shark's tail had touched the boat it would have smashed it like a cockle shell.

PARTIES BACK FROM SCOTLAND.

CHIEF GOES ON CRUISE.

HOLLAND INVITES PATROL LEADERS

Several Ulster Scouters from Strabane, Gilford, Leckpatrick, Ballyclare, and other centres leave for the Scottish Training Centre, Weymss Firs, Fife, to take part in the Scouters' Training Course just commencing. A number of Wolf Cub officers from Coleraine, Strabane, Ballymena, Belfast, etc., have returned from the same centre, having completed a Cubbers' course under instruction from headquarters' officers, including the Earl of Buckinghamshire, who is so well known in Ulster, and Major F. R. Lucas, M.D., of London. From reports made by the Cub officers, who appear to have had a marvellous time, the departing Scouters will be perfectly satisfied if their course is just as successful.

These training courses take the place of similar courses usually held at the Ulster Centre, but which for various reasons cannot be held here this year. Training for Scoutmasters and Cubmasters at these courses is part of a programme of instruction which is divided into three parts—theoretical, practical and administrative—and the main function is to interpret the scheme of Scouting to men and women who act as leaders. The Scouters are divided into patrols, in Scout troop fashion, and they live as a troop in camp. They are treated to lectures on various phases and aspects of Scouting, but they have a lot to do themselves in the way of knotting, pioneering, stalking, tracking, and so on.

WOLSEY AND SCOVELL HOME.

On Thursday, after some months of treatment, Rover Scout Dick Wolsey, 32nd Belfast, and Patrol Leader Jack Scovell, 54th Belfast (St. Thomas), left the Royal Victoria Hospital. Rover Wolsey, it will be remembered, sustained a broken leg and other injuries when motor-cycling near Newcastle. He is now well on the road to recovery, though it will be another month or so before he can dispose of crutches. Patrol Leader Scovell's injury was of a much more serious nature, and necessitated the amputation of his left foot. His release from hospital is, unfortunately, only temporary, as further treatment necessitates his return within a few weeks. Though suffering a permanent disability, Patrol Leader Scovell has lost none of his old Scout spirit, and is actually looking forward to attending the World Rover Scout Moot in Scotland next July.

After a strenuous life, full of adventure in all parts of the world, the Chief Scout might well have come home after his illness in Kenya and rested on his laurels. But that is not the Chief's way, and though he has been compelled to refrain from taking part in rallies and Scout displays he nevertheless seized upon the Scouters' and Guiders' cruise to Northern waters as a means of getting into harness again, as well as continuing his convalescence. The Chief has had few dull moments since he started Scouting in 1907, and he has had an exciting, adventurous, and useful life since his defence of Mafeking in the Boer War. Scouts everywhere will join in wishing him a happy cruise and speedy return to good health.

PASSING OF JIM HAMILTON.

His many friends in Scouting learned with regret of the death of James Hamilton (14), of Dunmurry, a schoolboy international footballer, whose undoubted ability had shown promise of even greater achievements to come. He first came into prominence when he was chosen to play for Belfast Wolf Cubs against the Wolf Cubs of Dublin. He was a natural choice for the Cub selectors, who greatly missed him when he passed Wolf Cub age, and was no longer eligible to play in the inter-city matches At the funeral on Sunday last schoolfellows, as well as representatives of schools' football, marched in procession behind the hearse. It is sad to think that this one-time Dunmurry Wolf Cub will no more be seen enjoying his beloved soccer, and everyone's sympathy is extended to his father and mother and other relatives.

ON LORD BANGOR'S DEMESNE.

The 16th Belfast (St. James's) Troop arrived home yesterday from their annual summer camp at Castleward, all well sunburned and looking fit after their fortnight of splendid weather on the shores of Strangford Lough. Lord Bangor, upon whose demesne they encamped, was actively interested in the camp activities, and he caused considerable excitement and delight when he allowed some of the boys to go out in his motor launch. Sports activities included tenniquoit, football, camp golf, and also two cricket matches against the villagers of Strangford. Both matches resulted in victories for the 16th, the Strangford men being skittled for eight runs in the second game. Camp fires in the evenings were bright and spirited affairs, enjoyed by the villagers as well as the boys. The actual site of the camp was ideal for Scout work. Patrol Leader Kenneth Dunbar and his Eagle Patrol won a very close inter-patrol competition. The troop left Belfast on last Tuesday week under the charge of Scoutmaster Rev. D. W. A. Quinlan, assisted by Assistant Scoutmaster J. C. Moffett, and the main body returned home yesterday morning.

BELFAST SCOUTING'S LOSS.

The 22nd Belfast and the Scout movement have suffered a very great loss in the death of Mr. Samuel Bingham, one of the pioneers of Scouting in Belfast. He was a King's Scout in the old 17th Troop, of which the present East Belfast District Commissioner, Mr. J. H. Norritt, was Scoutmaster. When the 22nd Group was formed two years ago, Mr. Bingham was one of the earliest and most enthusiastic supporters, always ready to assist, and his advice and help were invaluable to the Group. To Mrs. Bingham and to his sons, Troop Leader George Bingham, Patrol Leader Joseph Bingham and Scout Tom Bingham the sympathies of the 22nd Group and of Belfast Scouting will be extended.

The Elswout Scout Group of Bleomendaal, Haarlem, Holland, invite all British patrol leaders of first-class standard to join their troop camp at Hellendoora, in the east of Holland, between August 15 and 29. Although this is a last-minute opportunity it will be well worth while, and all it will cost the Scouts is a return ticket from their homes to Haarlem Station. All further cost will be paid by the Elswout Group. Most of the Holland boys can speak English and the idea of the invitation is to make friends and to exchange ideas.

CERTAIN NAVAL RECRUITS.

MAY NOW WEAR GLASSES.

Certain naval ratings may now wear glasses and have false teeth. Admiralty fleet orders to-day announced the revision of the eyesight standard for naval ratings and Royal Marines, and the modification as a temporary expedient of the dental standards.

The regulations have actually been in force for some considerable time, and are now being collated in one general order, so that to-day's announcement does not necessarily imply any reduction in the high standard of physical fitness which has always been required in the Royal Navy and Royal Marines.

Ratings of a number of categories may be permitted to wear glasses to enable them to carry out their duties provided that they are medically fit, apart from defective vision, each case being considered on its merits by the commanding office or in the case of new entries by the recruiting authority.

The temporary modification of dental standards means that candidates for direct entry to artificers' and artisans' branches are not to be rejected on account of dental defects which are capable of being remedied by treatment, including the gratuitous supply of dentures if required.

Modifications are also made in the case of other ratings.

SHEILA'S ANNUAL BATH

BABY ELEPHANT AT BELLEVUE

"Sheila," the baby elephant at the Bellevue Zoo, was given her annual bath on Wednesday last.

Human beings have been known to take a bath of champagne, but "Sheila" has a bath of cocoanut oil, which is almost as expensive.

The skin of an elephant often becomes hard and scaly and the use of cocoanut oil tends to soften the skin and keep it in good condition.

Another delicate job on this occasion is the manicuring of the nails and cleaning of the teeth. These operations require great skill and have to be done by an expert. Elephants have only four teeth, situated one on each side of the bottom jaw, and the other two on the top jaw, but although lacking in quantity, this is more than compensated by their enormous size. The tooth of a full-grown elephant weighs 6 lbs., and measures on the actual grinding surface 7ins. long x 2½ins. wide; while the tooth from the surface to the root is approximately 8ins.

"Sheila" behaved in a very lady-like manner during these operations, and was rewarded at the conclusion by the head keeper with a piping hot bran mash, into which was introduced an elephant's portion of rum and gin.

Her daily ration consists of six loaves of bread, one bucket of crushed oats, two cabbages, several mangels, and one truss of hay.

JEWISH MERCHANT'S FLIGHT

WITH WIFE AND MOTHER

TO REACH CZECH FRONTIER.

WAS CAPTURED: NOW SENTENCED.

The desperate attempt of Dr. Kurt Popper, a Jewish merchant in Vienna, to reach the Austro-Czecho-Slovak frontier at Perg on the night of March 11, when the German troops crossed the Austrian frontier was described in Vienna on Friday.

Dr. Popper was sentenced to two months' imprisonment for not declaring money held abroad in Zurich and for endangering the life of a gendarme on the road to Perg, whom he nearly ran down, having ignored his signal to halt.

It was stated that there was a rush of cars from Vienna to the frontier on March 11. Dr. Popper drove his own car with his wife and mother as passengers.

Gendarmerie and Storm Troopers stopped all cars passing through the many villages on the way from Vienna to the frontier and searched them especially for valuables.

CAR STOPPED.

Dr. Popper had very little money in the car and no considerable valuables, but he knew that he had broken the Austrian laws by sending about £1,000 to Switzerland in February without permission.

At Hainburg he accelerated when he saw the gendarmerie signal to him with their hand lamps to stop. One man had to jump for his life. His car was stopped at the next village by a barrier, and Dr. Popper and his wife and mother were brought back to Vienna.

TORCHLIGHT MARCH

VIENNA POLICE TO TAKE PART.

VIENNA, Saturday.—Viennese police will march in a torchlight procession tonight to the Vienna Municipal Prison, in memory of the four police officials hanged on August 13, 1934, for participating in the conspiracy against Dr. Dollfuss.

Herr Fitzthum, Chief of the Austrian Police, will deliver a memorial address in front of the gallows where the four were executed.—Reuter

'PLANE OVER CZECH SOIL.

BERLIN, Friday.—It is admitted here to-day that a German military aeroplane, piloted by a Bulgarian officer, temporarily attached to the German Air Force, landed on the Liberec (Reichenberg) Aerodrome in Czecho-Slovakia on Wednesday afternoon. The pilot, it is stated, had lost his way owing to bad weather while flying from South Germany to Silesia.

The German Press points out that unlike Czecho-Slovak airmen who have strayed over German territory, the pilot landed as soon as he had discovered his mistake and reported himself to the authorities.

FIREWORKS AT BANGOR.

ENTERTAINMENT WELL SUPPORTED

Thousands of people assembled in Abbey Park, Bangor, on Friday evening, for a fireworks display. The entertainment, under the auspices of the Bangor Chamber of Trade, was preceded by an outdoor entertainment in which bands and the Belfast C.P.A. gymnasium classes, under the direction of Miss L. R. Hogg and Mr. J. Uprichard, took part.

Marching was demonstrated by the Cleland Memorial Pipe Band, Bangor, which also contributed selections during the evening. The Corps of Drums of the First Battalion of the Welch Regiment, under Drum Major J. L. Green, and accompanied by Taffy VI., the goat mascot, took part in an interesting episode: "Beating Retreat."

The fireworks display was notable for the fact that it incorporated a set piece which was shown for the first time in Ulster. Entitled "The Royal Spithead Review," the set-piece was a masterpiece of pyrotechnique, depicting in coloured fire the Royal yacht, Victoria and Albert steaming between lines of battleships from which Royal salutes were fired.

REORGANISATION OF BRITISH NAVY.

114 NEW VESSELS

BY THE END OF 1941.

SUBMARINE BUILDING HUSTLE.

Far-reaching changes in the distribution of British and Dominion naval forces are foreshadowed (states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" naval correspondent). As the immense building programme now in hand approaches the Home and Mediterranean Fleets, the Reserve Fleet, and the Squadrons serving on foreign stations will all be reorganised.

During the next 18 months the Navy will be reinforced by 16 new submarines, whose ultimate destination is still confidential. It is surmised, however, that new underwater flotillas will be formed for service in home and foreign waters. The acceleration of the submarine depot ships, Maidstone and Forth, is significant in this connection.

THE NEW SHIPS.

Between now and the end of 1941 the following new ships will pass into service:—

Seven battleships—five of 35,000 tons with 14in guns., and two of 40,000 tons with 16in. guns.

Twenty-four cruisers from 10,000 to 5,450 tons.

Six aircraft carriers averaging 22,800 tons each, accommodating about 70 aircraft.

Forty destroyers of 1,850 to 1,690 tons.

Twenty-one submarines, mostly of ocean-going type.

Sixteen escort vessels and minesweepers. The majority equipped as anti-aircraft convoy ships.

It is understood that the distribution of this new Fleet, whose aggregate tonnage is equal to half that of the total British Navy in 1935, has already been determined.

FAR EAST PLANS.

The formation of a Battle Fleet for the Far East, I gather, is still under consideration. Should such a Fleet be deemed necessary its components will be provided for in the 1939 estimates, which are expected to include not fewer than three battleships of 40,000 tons.

MINISTER OF HOME AFFAIRS.

SIR D. BATES ON RATHLIN.

PROBLEMS DISCUSSED.

Sir Dawson Bates, Minister of Home Affairs, accompanied by Dr. Adrian Robinson and Dr. D. Boylan, M.O., Ballycastle, visited Rathlin Island yesterday, leaving Ballycastle by motor-boat at 10.30 a.m. in ideal conditions.

On arrival at the island they were given a cordial welcome. Among those present to receive them were Alderman M'Curdy, Rev. J. Maloney, C.C., and Rev. H. Brown, rector.

In an interview with a "Telegraph" representative, Sir Dawson said—"I interviewed several representatives of the islanders and discussed with them the manifold problems, the principal of which were the payment of rates and the need of road improvements. I pointed out that the County Council and the Government are placed in a very difficult position owing to the non-payment of rates."

Sir Dawson added that he afterwards paid a visit to the dispensary.

The party returned at 5-45 p.m., having a splendid crossing.

Sir Dawson, on arrival, was met by Mr. M. J. Feerick, clerk of Ballycastle Rural Council.

GERMAN FOUR YEAR PLAN.

MAY COMMANDEER STORE SHEDS.

BERLIN, Friday.—Under an order of Field Marshal Goering in his capacity of Commissioner for the four years plan, the authorities are empowered to commandeer buildings suitable for the storage of grain, wires the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" correspondent.

This has become necessary, it is stated, in order to accommodate this year's unusually favourable harvest.

The military importance of the measure is not overlooked in political circles here.

FIRESIDE ARTS AND CRAFTS

EXHIBITION AT PORTRUSH.

The ninth exhibition and sale of the Fireside Arts and Crafts Society will be held next week in the Trocadero, Portrush. Lady Helena Beresford-Ash will open the exhibition on Tuesday afternoon, and Mrs. Casement will preside. The public will again have an opportunity of seeing the securing the beautiful handwork of their fellow-countrymen and women.

The exhibition will be open from Tuesday afternoon, 16th till 19th August.

There are delightful Irish embroideries, handloom tweeds, pictures, painted china, leatherwork, knitting, jewellery, toys, gloves, furs, and many other useful and acceptable articles.

SPANISH CONFLICT.

GOVERNMENT LOSING POSITIONS

ON THE EBRO FRONT.

FIGHT FOR BRIDGEHEADS.

After resisting insurgent onslaughts for nearly three weeks at great cost of life, the Government troops are now relinquishing one by one their positions on the right bank of the Ebro, between Gandesa and Mora de Ebro, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" correspondent with the insurgent forces.

They have withdrawn entirely from Sierra de Santa Magdalena, the high ridge from which their machine-guns have been sweeping the insurgent line.

The most spectacular contest being waged on this sector is between the insurgent airmen, who are continually attempting to wreck bridges across the river, and Government engineers, who are indefatigably repairing them.

The airmen have the whip hand. Government communications across the river are inadequate and perilous. Delayed medical treatment caused by the congestion at the bridges is aggravating the sufferings of the Government wounded.

OFFENSIVE ON THE SEGRE.

Just as the Ebro offensive was carried out to diminish the insurgent pressure on Valencia, so a new Government offensive was launched against the insurgent bridge-head at Balaguer, north-east of Lerida, on the Segre, to relieve the hard-pressed troops in the Ebro valley. The attack began with a heavy artillery bombardment. Two infantry divisions, reinforced by 30 tanks, then tried to drive the insurgent troops back over the River Segre.

The attack failed, and this sector is now quiet again.

The insurgent southern and centre forces are continuing their advance swiftly through Estremadura. During the past two days they have occupied roughly 700 square miles of Government territory. The left wing of the Southern Army has surrounded Cabeza del Buey, a prosperous village 20 miles west of the mercury mines of Almaden.

GOVERNMENT HIT BACK.

The insurgent counter-offensive along the Ebro front seems to have begun in earnest, but, except for pushing the Republicans out of their Mequinenza pocket, little headway has been made thus far, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" correspondent with the Government forces.

STORMS OVER BATTLEFIELD.

BARCELONA, Saturday. — Tropical thunderstorms are hindering Republican operations on the Catalan border, washing out roads and flooding rivers.

Republican troops continue to hold the general lines reached in Eastern Spain as the result of recent attacks across the Ebro and the Segre and in the neighbourhood of Albarracin, west of Teruel.

The insurgents are making great efforts to dislodge them and have carried out some very heavy bombings of Republican positions.

The Press continues to emphasise that foreign aircraft is General Franco's main weapon.

BOMBED SHIP SKIPPER PROTESTS.

BARCELONA, Saturday. — Captain Thompson, master of the British steamer Lake Lugano (2,120) tons, which was bombed and set on fire last Sunday, has personally made a very strong protest to the British Minister here

"I do not object to the bombing, which is all in the game, but the machine-gunning of the crew was barbarous and unwarranted," he told the Press Association.

"They used the ship and crew for target practice."

SHEEP AT ALLAM'S.

AUTUMN SALES OPENED.

PRIZE-WINNERS AND VALUES.

The autumn shows and sales of sheep were opened at Messrs. Allam's Oxford Street premises on Friday. The animals brought forward were of the Suffolk breed, and the business of the day was under the auspices of the Suffolk Sheep Society. The standard of the exhibits were high, in the opinion of the judge, who was an Englishman. Suffolks, it may be stated, have for a long time been popular for crossing to produce early lambs for commercial trade.

The highest price paid was 21gns. to Mr. James D. G. Thompson, Boardmills, this being for a shearling.

The officials at the show preceding the sale were—Mr. R. H. Gibney, chairman; Mr. J. R. Hunter, vice-chairman; and Mr. Arthur Alderton, secretary. Mr. R. Allam superintended the stewarding, and later officiated at the auction. The judge was Mr. John Long, Ashbocking, Ipswich, who had the assistance of Mr. E. J. Goodchild, Essex.

THE AWARDS.

The prizes, with the challenge cups, awarded and also the prices realised were:—

Mr. Robert M'Dowell was the winner of the Novice Cup, presented by Messrs. R. J. Allam, Ltd., to a member who had never won a prize at other important shows.

At the sale of breeding and store sheep numbers were equal to the demand and prices held firm for suitable lots. A pen of five cross-Suffolk ewes made 46s each, and for choice pens of crossbred ewes, including hoggets, prices ranged between 38s and 44s.

THE PIG SALES.

Good demand prevailed at Messrs. Allam's weekly sale of fat sows and boars on Friday, and supplies showed an increase on those of last week. The usual buyers were in attendance. With the continued good demand prevailing in cross-Channel markets trade was very bright, and all lots on offer were quickly sold.

Quality York sows realised 43s to 45s per live cwt., second grade 42s, softer types 40s, and fat sows up to £11 15s, and fat boars to £5.

Some of the weights and prices recorded were:—Sows—One, 4cwt. 3qrs. 14lbs., £11 (45s); one, 5cwt. 1qr., £11 15s (44s 9d); one, 4½cwt., £10 (44s 6d); one 3½cwt., £7 15s (44s 3d); one, 3cwt. 3qrs. 14lbs., £8 7s 6d (43s 3d); one, 5cwt. 0qr. 14lbs., £11 (43s).

GERMAN NAVAL STRENGTH.

FLEET MANŒUVRES AT KIEL.

BERLIN, Friday.—Germany's massed naval strength will be displayed to Admiral Horthy, Hungarian Regent, when he visits Kiel on August 22. The whole German Fleet will be drawn up for his inspection in the Kiel Bight.

Admiral Horthy will watch with Herr Hitler from on board the Admiralty yacht Grille. He will also be taken through the Kiel Canal to Heligoland to inspect the naval fortifications there.

After visiting Hamburg Admiral Horthy will come on to Berlin where, on August 25 he will take the salute at a march-past of the German Army units. After spending the following day on a shooting expedition with Field-Marshal Goering he will return to Hungary via Nuremberg.

INGENIOUS FRAUD ON FRENCH HOTELS

BY 22-YEAR-OLD GIRL.

BEST FOODS: EXPENSIVE WINES.

PARIS, Saturday.—One of the most ingenious frauds ever worked on French hotels has just been discovered, and a young Mulhouse (Alsatian) girl arrested.

Mlle. Jean Courtallin, aged 22, arrived at a modest Montmartre hotel, and stayed for a week on pleasant terms with everyone. Then she told the manager to book 27 rooms for girls she expected to arrive from a Catholic convent at Belfont.

She said she expected them in a few days, but after a week suspecting that the manager was becoming suspicious, she told him she was going out to a high-class restaurant to order tables and dinners for the party.

True to her word she did, as the manager found when he 'phoned. She sat in the restaurant dining on the best, and drinking expensive wines until closing time. Then she attempted to walk out, but the proprietor whistled for the police, who, after hearing explanations, arrested her.

She is alleged to have confessed to living in this manner, paying for nothing for years.—Central News.

EX-SHIP CAPTAIN'S DEATH.

MURDER CHARGE DROPPED.

William Young, aged 58, retired ship's engineer, of East Boldon, near Sunderland, was at a special court at Jarrow on Friday evening charged with having murdered his brother, Bertram Patman Young, aged 54, retired ship's captain, also of East Boldon.

The police offered no evidence, and Young was discharged.

Police-Inspector Middlewood said accused had been seen by a magistrate that day, and in view of the course taken by the magistrate no evidence was being offered against him.

Captain Young died on Tuesday night, and on Thursday a post-mortem was ordered.

An inquest was opened on Friday afternoon at East Boldon and adjourned. The Deputy-Coroner, Mr. F. Regnart, stated that a man had been taken into custody.

Dr. H. A. Cookson, pathologist at Sunderland Infirmary, who carried out the post-mortem, said that deceased's heart was of considerable size and greatly diseased, and death was due to obstruction of the right coronary artery, chronic myocarditis, and heart failure.

GUIDE FOR BOOKLOVERS

A Book By a Belfast Minister

"PSYCHOLOGY AND PASTORAL PRACTICE," by Rev. D. Northridge, M.A. (Epworth Press: 5/-).

TO minister to a mind diseased is more difficult than the treatment of many bodily ailments. "Therein the patient must minister to himself." Psycho-analysis, by probing into buried and forgotten origins, has helped to a self-revelation that has brought relief to many victims of mental ill-health. The new field of pastoral work that lies in the realm of psychology is commanding growing attention. An important contribution to its development has just been made in the publication of a new book by Rev. Dr. Northridge M.A., B.D., of Edgehill College, Belfast.

Rev. Dr. Northridge "writes from wealth of experience."

At first sight, "Psychology and Pastoral Practice" may not attract as the title of a best-seller, yet this volume represents a study of absorbing interest to what may be termed the ordinary man as well as to ministers of religion, for whose guidance it is primarily intended, and to the medical profession. There are two reasons why this is so. It is in the ranks of everyday people unfortunate enough to become victims for the time-being of some mental kink or neurotic disorder that the author has found his material, and the book is written in a manner to be "understanded of the people."

HOW HE TOOK UP SUBJECT.

IN a brief but very arresting foreword Dr. Northridge tells how early in his ministry a possible, though unintentional, injustice in a grave criminal case led him to take an interest in pastoral psycho-therapy. This book is mainly the outcome of years of subsequent work in which he has sought to help by psychological and spiritual means large numbers of sufferers.

As a distinguished psychologist whose collaboration is welcomed by many doctors in Ireland he writes from a wealth of experience. His conviction of the great need for more intelligent co-operation between the Christian ministry and the medical profession has inspired these pages. His ideal would be for the churches to provide homes of healing in the great centres of population staffed by qualified practitioners who have sympathy with spiritual sensitivites. The next best thing—and herein lies the major plea of the book—is for a greater efficiency in pastoral practice which a psychological training makes possible. This book is a long stride to that end. It assists persons like ministers and welfare workers to discriminate between various types. Those which group themselves into nervous disorders (neuroses), he points to as being more amenable to pastoral assistance than the victims of the various manifestations of psychoses in which the disturbance is in the mind rather than in the nervous system.

NO TONE OF DOGMATISM.

IT has been laid to the charge of psychologists that they are prone to facile generalisations and to over-confident conclusions on meagre hypotheses. Dr. Northridge frankly confesses to difficulties where they exist, and there is no tone of dogmatism in this book. One of its most acceptable features is its frequent illustrations from actual contacts within the writer's experience. Incidentally the author does not hesitate to express disapproval of certain aspects of what is styled "crude evangelism."

Religion, he lays down, should be preventive as well as curative. "The most impressive fact about religion," he says, "is not its power to rescue or reclaim, but its power to prevent moral and mental disaster." Dr. Northridge writes not only with insight, but with a sympathy deep and sincere. This book is steeped in the spirit of helpfulness worthy of a disciple of Him, who went about doing good.

There is a foreword by Rev. Leslie Weatherhead, City Temple, London.

The Doctor's Corner

Eye Accidents

IF sand gets into the eyes, a stream of tears stimulated by blowing the nose several times often gives relief. If this fails, a drop or two of castor oil usually removes the sand and is very soothing

When particles of lime get into the eyes, bathing with boracic lotion should be started at once, and, of course, all but the slightest eye injuries should be examined by a doctor

If there is much swelling after an accident to the eye, cold compresses should be applied until further advice is obtained

Remember always that it is dangerous to attempt to extract a foreign body which is not removed by simple bathing

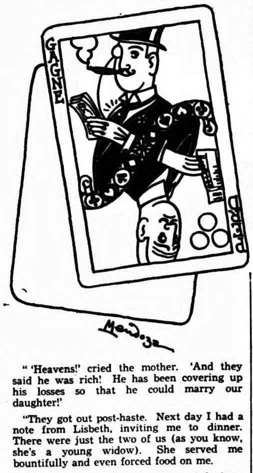
Six-Minute Story: No. 11, by Andre Birabeau

The WINNING STREAK



STRANGE young man, Bernard Catenat Imaginative. You wouldn't think it to look at him: his bearing and his glance suggest severity. Moreover, he is severe, and severe with himself, which makes it all the more surprising.

One day I went to see him. He lives in a handsome apartment in a fashionable suburb in Paris, for he has a large independent income. He told me without enthusiasm that he was going to marry a girl from the country, a friend of his cousin Lisbeth. I had trouble paying attention to what he was saying, for I kept looking around uneasily.

"What's the matter?" he asked.

"I don't know. Things don't seem the same here—"

"Oh, yes," he said, smiling wryly, "the chandelier is gone—and the card table and a divan.

"You're redecorating?"

REALISATION.

HE hesitated. "No," he said at length, "it's more serious than that. I know that I can trust you not to say anything about it. This is the thing: some time ago I realised suddenly that I had become a gambler. Bridge and poker in private houses, roulette and chemin de fer in the casinos—I had taken all that as a matter of course. But all at once I noticed from the trembling of my hands and the thumping of my heart that this thing had got beyond simple entertainment.

"The thing to do was apply the brakes. But what brakes? I'm no Croesus, but all the same I carry a pretty substantial balance at the bank. If I lose a few thousand francs to-day it won't keep me from sitting down at the gaming tables to-morrow.

"On the other hand, you know my principles. What you call my Quakerism makes me detest any action the net results of which is sinful—such as gambling away money without being punished for it or at least made uncomfortable. It's immoral.

"And so I came to this decision: henceforth the money I draw from the bank to pay my gambling debts will not be money that I give to myself but money that I lend to myself. Don't laugh: it's not all the same thing. What I mean is this: I make the loans on security.

OWN GUARANTOR.

"I SEE you don't understand. It's really simple though: if I lose a hundred francs, I, the gambler, turn over to Me, the lender, some object of value that will be a guaranty for the hundred francs. And, of course, I scrupulously forbid myself the use of this object until such time as I, the gambler, having won, can return the hundred francs to Me, the lender. I began with cuff links, but it quickly got beyond such trifles. You've seen only this room; it lacks the chandelier, a table and the divan. Do you want to glance into my private pawnshop?"

He opened a door at the end of the corridor. The room was crowded with objects of every sort.

"It's all recorded," Bernard said, showing me a small notebook. "In front of each item I put down the sum I have lent myself on it. To avoid haggling, I have adopted this principle: I lend myself 10 per cent. of what the object originally cost me. I doubt that the municipal pawnshop would offer me more.

AWKWARD.

"I'VE had some distressing times, as you can understand. Often I'm without a watch (and I've missed some important dates) and it's humiliating to appear at parties with cheap studs in your shirt when you're known to be a rich man. But I stick to it."

I looked at him, but he wasn't joking. He even seemed a little sad as his eyes roved over these accumulated treasures.

"You know," he said, "it's only by looking at all these expensive things which I like and need, and which I have given up for one-tenth their value that I get an idea of what gambling really costs. Some day I hope I'll get genuinely frightened."

We returned to the drawing-room. "Have some port," he invited "while I still have two glasses to serve it in."

It was several weeks before I saw him again. "What's new?" I asked.

TOO FORMAL.

"TWO things," he told me eagerly. "You remember I told you that I might marry a friend of my cousin Lisbeth? It was to be a marriage of convenience, and the whole affair was being arranged by intermediaries. Well, finally the family came to Paris. They asked Cousin Lisbeth to have a party so that they could meet me.

"Lisbeth didn't think much of the idea. 'Let's not be so formal,' she said to them. 'We'll just go over to my cousin's, I'll introduce you, and that will be that.'

"So they came to my apartment, father, mother, daughter and Lisbeth. My drawing-room was bare as a barn except for three chairs and the piano. Even the piano shouldn't have been there: I had borrowed a thousand francs on it. It belonged in my pawnshop. The only trouble was I couldn't get it in.

"Can you picture the father's expression, and the mother's and the daughter's? And Lisbeth's too! The door to the dining-room was open. They went in. The place was empty. They opened the door to my bedroom. There was nothing there but the bed. Well, what could you expect? I hadn't stopped playing and I'd been losing steadily.

" 'Heavens!' cried the mother. 'And they said he was rich! He has been covering up his losses so that he could marry our daughter!'

"They got out post-haste. Next day I had a note from Lisbeth, inviting me to dinner. There were just the two of us (as you know, she's a young widow). She served me bountifully and even forced food on me.

" 'Please, my dear, have some more,' she kept saying tenderly with a pitying smile.

"Finally I understood. She thought I was starving to death in my empty apartment. At dessert she couldn't restrain herself any longer and fell into my arms, weeping:

DISILLUSIONMENT.

"BERNARD, Bernard, oh, my dear, why didn't you tell me that you had no money? And all this time I thought you were too rich for me!"

"And I realised that with these tears she was offering to a penniless man, as she believed me to be, her fortune and a love at which I had never even guessed. I didn't disillusion her immediately. . . . Now we're going to be married. Only she insists that I give up gambling entirely. That's gratitude for you! It was gambling that brought us together. . . .

"Come over and have dinner next week. We'll have chairs to sit on at the very least. I have a strong feeling that I'm in a winning streak."

Sidelights on Surnames

DOWIE AND ITS HISTORY

The study of our surnames is still in its infancy. When it becomes more thorough we may hope for a solution of hosts of mysteries yet unsolved. For instance, there is still much to be settled concerning the surname Dowie, and a rarer form now MacDowie or Macildowie.

Some bearers of the latter forms are proud to think of themselves as belonging to a clan. Some day that point may be settled. At present all that is known points to their association with the famous clans of Buchanan or Cameron; and in circumstances which show that the connection came either by co-operation in arms or by marriage. Of course MacDowie implies the son of, or a descendant of, Dowie. and this is the point of importance.

Whence this surname Dowie? Here some have professed to find the direct link with the clans. The first chief of the Clan Cameron was Donald Du of the fifteenth century. But another form was Dowe and this first appears in and there are many records which indicate the steady development of this Du into Dow, and thence into Dowie. the annals of the great Buchanan clan. Here at least we have the beginnings of the name among the clans.

The surname as Dowe has almost vanished, and there are singularly few Macdowies or Macildowies. They can justly pride themselves on being the last links with clan associations.

For while Dowie is now the most familiar form, the records suggest that it became rare in Scotland long, long ago and made most headway elsewhere. Further, that there was sometimes another explanation for the name; that it was derived from a place name.

Certainly, Dowie is to be found among the names of citizens of ancient London, and one among London benefactors in the sixteenth century. It has been an old-established surname in Lancashire, to which county it was seemingly brought by one Muir Dowie, who became a notable Liverpool merchant.

His daughter was a pioneer in her day. Her travels and sporting adventures attracted attention, whilst her writings won a considerable public.

Dowie appears also among long ago surnames in Lincolnshire. This prevalence of the surname in England and its uncommonness now in Scotland has puzzled many, and prompted yet another explanation for it. That besides deriving from Dow or Du, it alluded of old to personal appearance—an ancestor noted for his dark colour or swarthy appearance; or from Dowe or Dowie parish or local names.

There was a third source—that as a variant from the ever-popular baptismal name David. Few Scriptural names have indeed been so faithful, and Dowie, Dowson, Dowe, and Dowey are among the many which have been claimed as traceable to the David influence.

OUR commonsense should le[illegible] expect that, in such a boo[illegible] New Testament, there will be [illegible] difficulties. But we shall be d[illegible] more impetuosity than wisdo[illegible] allow ourselves to conclude th[illegible] occasional discrepancies—most [illegible] apparent rather than real—inva[illegible] whole Book.

The majority of these appar[illegible] culties are simply due to [illegible] translations of the original Greek. [illegible] glance at the Revised Version [illegible] sufficient to remove them for us.

One of the most familiar of the[illegible] culties is provided by Christ's pa[illegible] the "Unjust Steward," which [illegible] really be called the "Dishonest St[illegible]" The difficulty here exists in the [illegible] a dishonest man is apparent[illegible] mended for his roguery.

This, of course, is not the case. The "lord" who commends the [illegible] steward is the man's master in t[illegible] and not Our Lord. (The word [illegible] the common Greek word for "m[illegible] And again, he is commended not [illegible] he has done well, but because [illegible] acted wisely—or rather, prudent[illegible]

HE WAS WHOLE-HEARTED.

IT is quite likely that—as with so many others of Christ's parables—this story is based on some actual incident which had occurred at Nazareth or Capernaum, and which had come under His notice. He made use of it to draw a practical lesson for His disciples, and the point of it depends on the fact that it was to them that He addressed His remarks.

It contains two chief lessons, the first of which is this. The steward was a dishonest fellow; but he was extremely thorough in his dishonesty. No half measures, wavering or hesitation about him! Having chosen dishonesty, he went in for it neck and crop, and did not just play at it. If he was a rogue, he was at least whole-hearted about his knavery. His master, without for a moment condoning his fraud, admitted that he had shown practical commonsense, and had shown, too, that he knew what he wanted.

And Christ goes on to say that "the children of this world," that is, worldly people, are, in their generation (in their way of doing things) wiser than the children of light (religious people). They are not better than religious people but they are wiser. For there are men of the world who, having made it their life's aim to amass money, pursue this object with complete thoroughness and determination. In their pursuit of worldly success they are out-and-out.

WHERE CHRISTIANS FAIL.

MEANWHILE religious people are often so deplorably half-hearted about their religion. They have spiritual impulses and good desires, but they do not concentrate all their energies upon the pursuit of what they have chosen. They are not more than half in earnest about it, and appear to be trying to make the best of both worlds.

This attempt to serve God and Mammon, says Our Lord, simply spells failure. Those who try to do this lose their chance of enjoying either themselves or God; for half-hearted, divided service has always the doom of failure and futility upon it.

This is the reason why the witness of many religious people is so ineffective. They do not appear to others to be really in earnest about their religion, and therefore seem to be a negligible quantity.

On the other hand, it is rarely that a man or woman who is absolutely wholehearted and uncompromising about his or her religion fails to win respect from, and to have a real influence upon, worldly people. These latter are watching something which they understand, appreciate, and practise themselves, namely, thoroughness. So, says Our Lord, there is a lesson which even a dishonest man can teach us, which is to be as out-and-out in our religion as a knave is in his roguery.

The other lesson contained in this parable is that this dishonest man showed his wisdom in looking ahead. He foresaw that a time was rapidly approaching when he would be put out of his stewardship and left destitute. He, therefore, took steps to provide for himself when this day should come. He did so by using the wealth at his disposal to make friends who would help him when this wealth "failed." (What Our Lord really said was "Make to yourselves friends by means of the unrighteous mammon.")

MONEY MAKES FRIENDS.

THERE is a day coming for all of us when we shall stand naked and destitute, when money, possessions, successes, position and all earthly comforts will have been taken from [illegible] Even the millionaire will die "w[illegible] nothing" except the personal chara[illegible] which he has made for himself.

A shroud, fortunately, has no po[illegible] and we can take nothing with us, n[illegible] our business nor the pleasures [illegible] it has purchased for us, nor the [illegible] position which it has given us.

But there is just one thing th[illegible] can take with us, and that is th[illegible] which we have done, the happ[illegible] have created, the help and chee[illegible] we have brought to others. The[illegible] purposes for which we can u[illegible] "mammon" whilst we still ha[illegible] chance. In itself it is "unrig[illegible] because it can be productive of [illegible] evil; but, used aright, it is cap[illegible] making many friends for us.

Who shall say whether the lov[illegible] goodwill, the gratitude, the pra[illegible] those whom we have made our [illegible] by means of our money may [illegible] us in good stead in the day "w[illegible] shall fail," and make for us a hav[illegible] a resting-place for our souls in the [illegible] of the things which are eternal?

This, at all events, is Our [illegible] advice to us as to how to use our w[illegible] possessions; and we shall do well to heed to what He says to us.

SHANGHAI THRILLS

MACHINE-GUNS TRAINED ON BRITISH POSTS

COUNTER-ACTION THREATS

JAPS DISGUISED AS CHINESE

INCITING TO TERRORISM

Shanghai lived on the edge of a volcano to-day —the first anniversary of the outbreak of hostilities there.

SEVERAL SERIOUS INCIDENTS OCCURRED, BUT A MAJOR FLARE UP WAS PREVENTED BY INTENSIVE PRECAUTIONS TAKEN BY THE INTERNATIONAL SETTLEMENT AND FOREIGN CONCESSIONS' AUTHORITIES.

Firm action was required of the British. Japanese military trained machineguns on British sentry posts and only the threat of counter measures resulted in the guns being removed.

Major-General Telfer-Smollett, British commander, personally toured the British posts at five a.m.

ROUND OF THE POSTS AT FIVE A.M.

Japanese officers dressed as Chinese were arrested by American marines for incitement. Two others similarly disguised were detained and later released by the British.

Revolver shots were fired from a car at Chinese crowds.

A hand grenade exploded in the Japanese area.

Twenty bombs were found in a police raid on a private house.

Hidden arms and ammunition were seized at the "Doomed Battalion's" concentration camp.

"FOR WAYS THAT ARE DARK."

Agitators inciting the Chinese in the Shanghai International Settlement by acts of terrorism have turned out on arrest to be Japanese officers in disguise.

The intensive precautions taken by the Settlement and Concession authorities up till 3-30 this afternoon have prevented yesterday's bombings being followed by further outbursts on the anniversary of the outbreak of the Shanghai fighting.

American Marines this morning closed in on three men in Chinese clothes who were urging a crowd of Chinese to resist the "white oppressors." One of the three was injured in the head and taken to hospital, while the Americans arrested the other two.

IDENTIFIED BY OWN POLICE.

The Japanese Consular police on being called in positively identified the men as Japanese officers in disguise. They said they could take no action in the matter.

The Americans then removed their Japanese prisoners to the American barracks.

On the instructions of the Settlement police two other Japanese, one wearing Chinese clothes, were stopped by British troops at the boundary as they were attempting to return to Japanese occupied territory.

Their car, which bore a privileged Shanghai defence force number, had been observed distributing handbills in the Settlement agitating against Chiang Kai-shek.

Both men proudly told a Press Association correspondent who was allowed to visit them that they were Japanese officers. After being held by the Settlement police the men were allowed to pass outside the boundary.

GENERAL TOURS LINES AT 5 A.M.

Early this morning Japanese sentries were found to have trained machine-guns on the British sentry posts in all areas. The Britisn vigorously protested, and threatened if they were not immediately withdrawn that the British would train their machine-guns on the Japanese posts.

Major-General Telfer-Smollett, British Commander, personally toured the British defence posts at five a.m. to satisfy himself that this had been done.

At six a.m. a hand-grenade exploded in the Japanese area, just beyond the border of the French Concession. The Japanese protested to the French, declaring that the bomb originated in French territory.

The French replied that they were satisfied, after an exhaustive investigation, that this was not so.

zAt nine a.m. a car filled with Japanese, dressed in civilian clothes, rushed through the Settlement firing revolver shots into the Chinese crowds. It was brought to a standstill by the barbed wire barricades. The occupants have been detained.

NEWSBOY ARRESTED.

A newsboy was arrested for distributing pamphlets inciting against foreigners and urging the Chinese to resist the British and French, who were described as "these wild beasts preying on China."

He stated that he had received the handbills and payment from the Japanese.

Three Chinese arrested by municipal police as they were entering the settlement from the Japanese side confessed that they were acting under instructions from the Japanese, who paid them to collect bombs from a certain house in the Settlement, and to create disturbances. Raiding the house named, the police found 20 bombs.

An elderly Chinese was shot dead during the night by an Italian sentry for failing to halt when challenged.

RAID ON "DOOMED" MEN'S CAMP.

A midnight raid on the concentration camp where the "doomed battalion" is held resulted in the seizure of a large quantity of hidden arms and ammunition. The commander of the battalion has been removed as a precaution.

A sudden shower of pro-Chinese pamphlets over the streets at seven this morning, aroused rumours that Chinese aeroplanes had flown over. Entire lack of confirmation, however, promotes a general belief that the pamphlets were thrown from rooftops.—Press Association Foreign Special.

INQUIRY INTO SHIP BOMBING.

TO BE ON FRANCO SOIL.

OWNERS WOULD BE EXCLUDED.

A lively controversy developed yesterday concerning the proposals of the British Government for inquiry into the bombing of British ships.

The main heads of the owners' criticism of the Government scheme were that—

(1) Any inquiry would be held on insurgent territory;

(2) The British shipowners would be excluded;

(3) That evidence from persons residing in Spanish Government territory would be "inadvisable"; and

(4) That General Franco had given no promise to pay compensation.

While not denying that the proposals made by the Foreign Office department concerned, were as represented by the shipowners, the Foreign Office was at pains to emphasise that they were simply tentative.

In a vigorous rejoinder the Shipowners' Committee on Friday night threw the blame for any misunderstanding on the Foreign Office itself.

It further challenged, on the latter's own authority, notwithstanding a statement by the Premier in the Commons on July 26, any suggestion that General Franco had pledged himself to pay compensation.

FRANCO AND COMPENSATION.

The following statement was issued in London to-day:—

In regard to the negotiations which are still continuing on the proposed commission to inquire into the alleged deliberate attacks on British ships in Spanish ports, it appears to have been inferred in some quarters that the scheme of inquiry is at variance with the Prime Minister's statement in the House of Commons on July 26 and that, contrary to Mr. Chamberlain's statement, General Franco has given no promise to pay compensation in any case in which it was proved that an attack on a British ship was deliberate. This is not a correct statement of the position.

Amongst the conditions included in the general proposals submitted to General Franco was one stipulating that in any case in which it was found by the commission that a deliberate attack had taken place General Franco would pay immediate compensation, and he has in fact agreed to the whole plan on the lines proposed.

The misunderstanding must have arisen, it is pointed out, from a statement made to the committee of British shipowners that no specific mention or guarantee to pay compensation has been made by General Franco in his reply, which was of a general nature.

BRITISH NEWSPAPER PEER'S VISIT.

COURTESY CALLS TO-DAY.

PORT CHAIRMAN: ULSTER AGENT.

Sir Ernest Herdman, chairman of the Belfast Harbour Board, and Sir James Cook-Collis, the newly-appointed Ulster agent in London, paid a courtesy call this morning on Lord Kemsley, chairman of Allied Newspapers, Ltd., on board his motor yacht Princess at the Pollock Basin, Belfast.

The Princess, which arrived in Belfast on Friday evening for Dublin, has cruised from Cowes via St. Ives, Tenby and Dublin, and will remain in Belfast for several days.

Lord Kemsley is accompanied by Lady Kemsley, the Hon. Lionel Berry and his wife, Lady Helen Berry, a daughter of the Marquis of Tweeddale, the Hon. Douglas Berry, and the Hon. Pamela Berry; Viscount Duncannon and his sister, Lady Moyra Ponsonby, son and daughter of the Earl of Bessborough; Baron Heyden A'Hauzer and Baroness Heyden A'Hauzeur, a sister of Lady Kemsley, and Lady Ghislaine Dresselhuys, daughter of Lady Kemsley by an earlier marriage.

THE ESCAPED PRISONERS.

FLYING SQUAD CARS SCOUR STREETS.

The main search for the two men who escaped from Lewes (Sussex) Prison was still being concentrated in London early to-day.

A close watch was being kept on places which the men might visit and flying squad cars scoured the streets following the discovery at Holloway of a van missing from Lewes. A prisoner's jacket was found inside it.

The prisoners are Arthur William Sheerman (30), whose home is stated to be at Highgate, and James Curzon (26), described as a seaman, of no fixed abode.

They were missed from their cells at 6-30 a.m. on Friday when it was found that dummies had been placed in their beds.

It is thought that they climbed the prison wall by a rope taken from the basket shop and escaped under cover of a thick fog.

R.M. AND BICYCLE STEALING.

At Dungiven, Samuel Clarke, of Drumneecky, was charged with the larceny of a bicycle, valued £3, the property of William Brown, of Gortislane.

Binding over the defendant for twelve months, Captain Bell, R.M., said bicycle stealing was a particularly mean form of offence.

LOUTH FARMER DEAD.

SHOTGUN LYING AT HIS SIDE

DISCOVERY BY NEPHEW.

A small farmer, Henry Thompson (62), of Edentubber (Co. Louth), was found shot dead about 12 p.m. on Friday. The discovery was made by Patrick Hillen, his nephew, who resided with him.

It appears that when Hillen left home to get tobacco some time earlier Thompson was sitting in the kitchen, and on his return Hillen found him lying on his back in a pool of blood in the sleeping room off the kitchen.

Thompson was fully clothed except for his coat, and a single barrelled shotgun was lying at his side. Apparently the shot went through the breast.

ABANDONED BABY CHARGE.

DONEGAL WOMAN ACCUSED.

The discovery of a baby boy in a Mews near East Ham Police Station, London, four months ago had a sequel at East Ham Police Court to-day when Kathleen M'Kellar, aged 28, married, of Kincasslagh, Co. Donegal, appeared before the Mayor and other justices.

She was charged on a warrant with abandoning Anthony Joseph M'Kellar, aged 11 months, in a manner likely to cause him unnecessary suffering or injury to his health.

Detective-Sergeant Tyars said that in January of last year the prisoner married a police constable and gave birth to the child the following June. She eventually told her husband he was not the father of the child and as a result he told her to clear out. On her arrest she admitted having left the baby in a Mews near her husband's lodgings, hoping he would see it.

"I was distressed," she said, "and did not know what to do." She added that she was now expecting another child.

The officer stated that the woman's husband had resigned from the police force and had instituted divorce proceedings. She had been living with her widowed mother in Donegal. There were no convictions against her.

The court was informed that the baby had become chargeable to the East Ham local authorities and was at present in hospital.

The accused, who said she had no financial means, was bound over on probation for 12 months.

Arrangements are being made for her return to Donegal.
